MRS. H. J. HUNTER'S STORY OF COOLIE'S ATTACK | SENSATIONAL ALLEGATIONS IN NEW FIRE TRIAL

Tong Wing-kok, the house coolie who brutally attacked Mrs. H. J. Hunter, and for whose apprehension the police are offering a reward of $200.

RIOT SQUAD ON GUARD TROUBLE THREAT ON WHARF FATSHAN SCENE FEARS

Serious trouble brewed at the Canton Wharf this morning when the B. & S. river steamer Fatshan was expected from Canton on her first run since the settlement of the strike, and boycott.

The boat was due at 11 a.m., but for some time prior to this a crowd of coolies had been collecting on the wharf, with no peaceful intentions. It was evident, waiting for the arrival of the vessel.

Fears of impending trouble, communicated to Police Headquarters at 10 a.m., brought the Emergency Unit post-haste on the scene, together with a number of European and Chinese detectives.

PLAYING POSSUM.

They saw nothing to confirm the fears communicated, except a large number of coolies grouped together on the wharf and keeping very much to themselves. It was however suspected that they were only playing "possum", and the Police did not deem it advisable to withdraw, but to stand-by until the vessel arrived.

Official investigators were told that the Fatshan was carrying a new gang of cargo-working coolies, whose presence on board is resented by the old gang discharged when the vessel was laid up in consequence of the strike.

PRECAUTIONS SUCCEEDED.

Later.

The first twenty minutes were survived without a sign of trouble, although there were groups of coolies on the wharf and large crowds outside.

The police riot squad remained outside the wharf ready for any emergency, Inspector Shannon alone being inside.

The coolies at the Canton wharf left eventually in a body. It is understood that S.C.A. conciliation is being sought.

SENTENCED TO DEATH FOR THIRD TIME

Alabama Assault Case Latest

New York, Dec. 1.

It is learned from Decatur, Alabama, that the negro, Hayward Patterson, accused of an assault upon a white woman, has been sentenced to death for the third time.

It is probable that a new trial will be sought.—Reuter.

ASKED TIME OF HUSBAND'S RETURN SAVAGE ATTACK MADE AT TEA-TIME EARLY ARREST EXPECTED

The mystery of the attack on Mrs. H. J. Hunter deepens as further facts connected with the outrage come to light.

It is thought in some quarters that the coolie, Ah Wing, who was responsible, must have had a fit of temporary insanity.

On the other hand, the fact that, before committing the savage assault, he tied up Mrs. Hunter's chow dog at the back of the house, leads to the suspicion that the attack was premeditated.

KEYS MISSING.

Mrs. Hunter's bunch of keys, which were always kept in her hand-bag, are now found to be missing, though no jewellery or money appears to have been taken. The key of the back door has also gone.

Judging from the circumstance, it is thought that it was more than likely that Ah Wing, when he made his escape, must have had blood stains on his clothing for a search by the Police in the house revealed that no bloodstained clothing had been left behind.

MRS. HUNTER'S STORY.

Seen yesterday afternoon at the Kowloon Hospital, Mrs. Hunter could throw very little light on the reason for the attack but said that the coolie approached her early in the afternoon and asked what time she wanted tea. She told him she would like it about 4.30 p.m. He then asked her what time Mr. Hunter would arrive home and she replied, "Probably about five o'clock." The coolie, at that time, appeared to be the same as usual and acted in a natural manner.

The next thing she knew was that at 4.30, the coolie, instead of bringing in her tea, suddenly appeared with the knife in his hand and attacked her.

ARM WOUNDS.

It is thought that his first blow opened her cheek and that the injuries to her arm were due to the fact that she sought to protect her face from further injury. This is doubtless the reason why Mrs. Hunter has so many serious wounds on her arm.

In the doctor's opinion, it was fortunate that the wounds were on the outside of the arm for had they been inflicted in the region of the wrist, an artery might have been opened and Mrs. Hunter might have bled to death before the arrival of her husband, half an hour after the attack.

SEARCH GOES ON.

In connexion with the affair, it is understood that the Police have a theory which, when followed up, may lead to the arrest of the coolie. The search is continuing unrelentingly. It is impossible for the assailant to have got clear of the Colony.

Mrs. Hunter is still in a critical condition but it is thought that when she recovers from the shock, she will be in no further danger.

TIN TING SALVAGED MACAO STEAMER AFLOAT AGAIN GOOD WORK BY DOCK COMPANY

The Telegraph learns that the salvage of the Portuguese s.s. Tin Ting is now an accomplished fact, after one of the smartest pieces of salvage work in trying conditions.

It will be recalled that the Tin Ting struck the breakwater at the entrance to Macao Harbour at 8 p.m. on October 17 last. She sank on the outside of the breakwater within twenty minutes of striking, though all her crew and passengers were happily rescued by tugs and launches.

Salvage was undertaken by the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Company, and has been completed after an exceedingly trying time, with a typhoon undulating much good work, and bad weather and a heavy swell hampering most of the operations.

At the commencement of the salvage operations only the funnel was visible owing to the fact that the vessel had been slowly sinking into the soft mud.

Messrs. W. Forsyth and F. Maher, of the Kowloon Dock, pulled her out and lifted her by sheer determination, bringing off what seemed at one time to be an almost impossible task.

The Tin Ting is expected in the Colony, in tow of a Dock tug, some time to-day.

MOLLISON BACK IN ENGLAND

VIEWS ON ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE

London, Dec. 1.

The famous airman, Mr. James A. Mollison arrived at Plymouth to-day from the United States where he and his wife have remained since their successful East to West Atlantic flight in the summer.

Both aviators suffered minor injuries when their machine alighted in boggy land. They made a good recovery and have since been on holiday in Bermuda.

Referring to various schemes for a Trans-Atlantic Air Service, Mollison expressed the view that the only practicable all-year-round route was via the Azores and Bermuda.—British Wireless.

DE VALERA WINS A SEAT IN ULSTER ELECTION RESULT GESTURE DID NOT VISIT HIS CONSTITUENCY

London, Dec. 1.

With the exception of the four Belfast University seats, the results of the General Election in Northern Ireland were announced this afternoon as follows:—

Unionists, 33,
Nationalists, 9,
Independents, 2,
Socialists, 2,
Fianna Fail, 1,
Republican, 1.
Lord Craigavon, the Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, in a message to Unionists this evening, says that Ulster is again assured of five years of resolute and settled Government, "accompanied, I sincerely trust, by a period of peace, progress and prosperity."

"I will carry on encouraged and strengthened by this signal victory over the disruptive elements raised against our Imperial stronghold."

The successful Fianna Fail candidate was Mr. De Valera, President of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State, who was elected in South Down, one of the border counties.

He did not visit the constituency during the election campaign.—British Wireless.

REITHIMWINKEL INCIDENT AUSTRIA APOLOGISES TO GERMAN GOVERNMENT

Vienna, Dec. 2.

A Mixed Boundary Commission has found that the German soldier, Schumacher, the victim of the Reithimwinkel incident, was shot on German soil and not on the Austrian side of the border as originally asserted.

He was shot dead by an Austrian frontier-guard, who said he was surrounded on Austrian territory by a number of German soldiers.

The apologies of the Austrian Government have been conveyed to the German Ambassador, who has been informed that the guilty will be punished.—Reuter.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK STORY DENIED RUMOURS OF PLAN TO RESIGN JAPANESE AND FUKIEN

Shanghai, Dec. 2.

A sensational report published by a foreign newspaper here, alleging that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek was seriously contemplating resignation in order to permit a compromise with the Fukien secessionists was denied by a Government spokesman last night.

Since the spreading of the rumour telegrams have been sent to Nanchang making enquiries, and the Generalissimo has also denied the report.

The Japanese Minister to China, now visiting Nanking, interviewed Mr. Wang Ching-wei, the President of the Executive Yuan, yesterday.

JAPANESE INTEREST.

The Minister told Mr. Wang that in Amoy alone there are 20,000 Japanese residents, while there are large numbers of Japanese subjects in other Fukien cities along the coast.

The Japanese Minister expressed his concern about protection for the Japanese residents and hoped that the Chinese government would not lose sight of this responsibility if and when hostilities break out.

Concerning the charges of Formosan interest in the secessionist movement, the Japanese Minister said the Tokyo Government regarded the Fukien revolt as an internal political disturbance in China. It was Japanese policy not to interfere with it or to supply materials to the secessionists. All rumours of Japanese participation and interest in the revolt are incorrect.

SALVAGE CHIEF IN PAY OF HARRIS GAVE WARNING OF TRAP

London, Dec. 1.

Astounding allegations were made in the course of the hearing to-day at Bow Street Police Court of evidence for the prosecution of Captain Brynmor Eric Miles, the Chief Officer of the London Salvage Corps.

Captain Miles, who appeared after a fortnight's adjournment on bail of £5,000, is charged with conspiring with Leopold Harris, ringleader of the great fire-raising plot, and with others, to pervert the due course of justice.

It was alleged to-day that Captain Miles was in the pay of Leopold Harris and that he warned him when trouble was brewing and a trap had been laid.

To-day's hearing revealed how long and carefully the police were investigating the long series of mysterious fire occurrences before effecting any arrests.

IN PAY OF HARRIS.

The prosecution alleged that Miles received £25 every month regularly from Harris from 1930 onwards, the payment being the result of a meeting between the two at which Miles is alleged to have mentioned that he could help Harris by shutting his eyes to suspicious circumstances in fires.

It was further alleged that when the investigations were started, Miles pretended to be on the side of the insurance companies while giving Harris warning of various pitfalls.

FAKED ACCIDENT RUSE.

It was said that he discussed plans with solicitors of different insurance companies for arranging a meeting between the informer, Capsoni, who was scathingly referred to by the judge at the Harris trial, and Harris, so that the conversation should be overheard.

A street accident was faked and Capsoni was taken to a nursing home. Mrs. Capsoni then rang up Harris on the telephone urging him to call and see the invalid.

The ruse failed, it was alleged, because Miles also rang up Harris and warned him not to go, saying that microphones had been installed at the nursing home and that the whole incident was a plot to entrap him.—Reuter.

SHEATH SILHOUETTE EMPHASIZED IN AUTUMN BRIDAL COSTUMES

NEW WEDDING GOWN MODE MOULDS THE FIGURE

By Joan Savoy

The Autumn bride walks down the aisle in a gown that catches all the glamour of the new mode. The bride must pay particular attention to the fabric which she selects for her wedding dress. As is true of all frocks for important occasions, the material can't be too luxurious. Velvet is a favourite. So is satin. If you do decide on satin, get some that is heavy and glittering. Heavy tulle, lace, and silvery tulle are wise choices too.

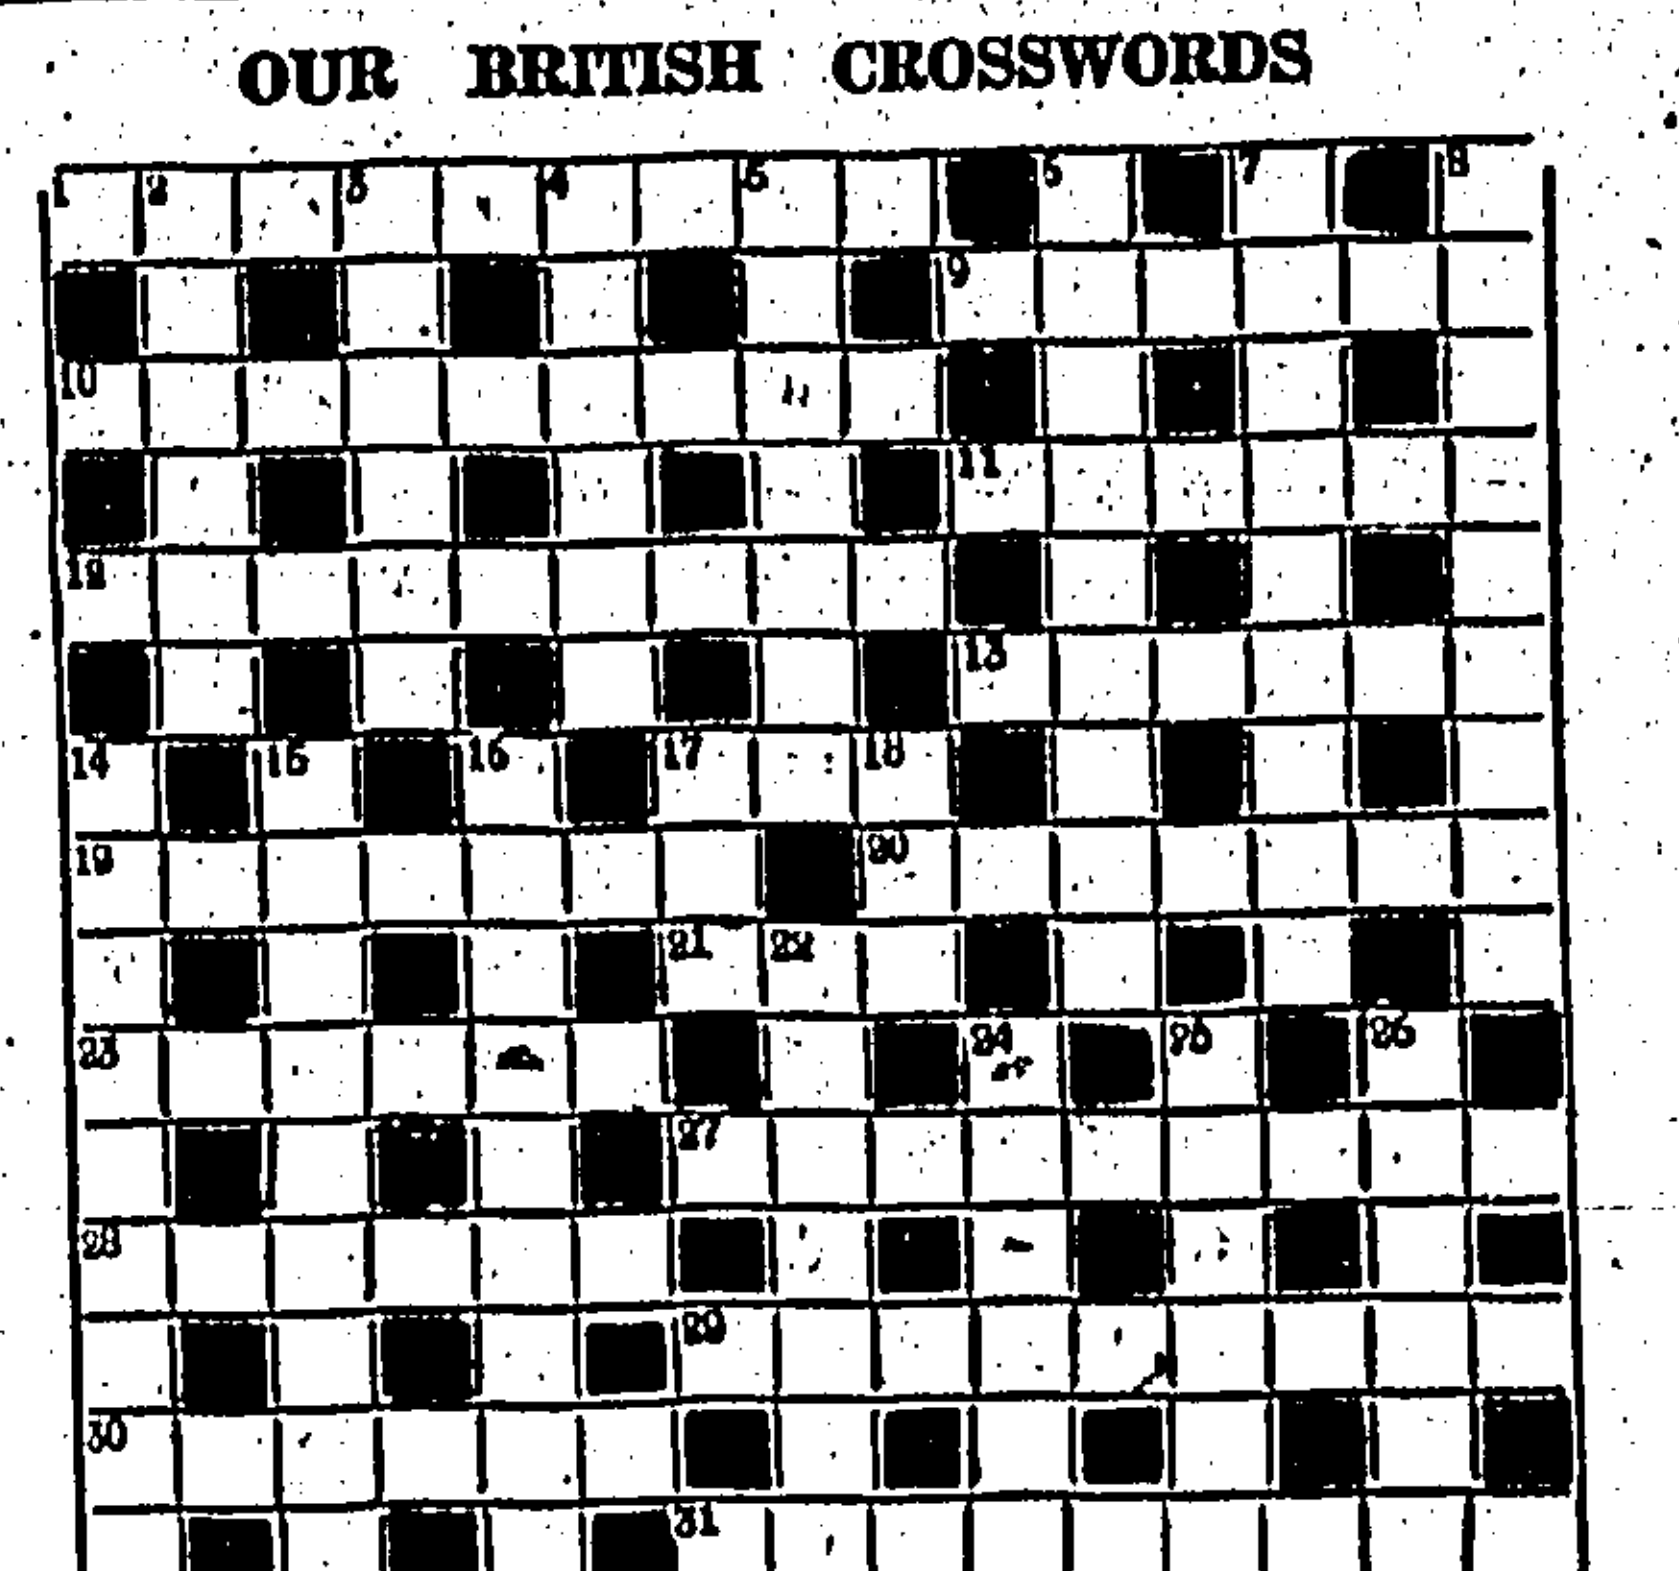

Let your gown mould your figure! The sheath silhouette is emphasized in all new bridal costumes. Most wedding gowns have trains. And they're long, sweeping ones. White is the most popular colour but not dead, dull white. Off-white shades are newer and more flattering to most girls. There are some pastel coloured wedding dresses, but not many. On the day of days you'll do well to stick to white or some slight variation of it.

An exquisite wedding gown of silvery white satin (illustrated here) is sure to fulfill the dreams of any young bride. Its square neckline, long sweeping lines and unusual sleeves are delightful. The waistline hugs the figure by means of star-like tucks on each side. The raglan sleeves which almost touch the floor are slit at the elbows, allowing half of the arms to show.

This little bride was wrapped her head and throat in strips of heavy white tulle to match the gown. The tulle veil is caught in the nun-like head dress. She carries no flowers.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Do your lessons, Algy."

"Oh, those old lessons! I hate them." Algy kicked the speller that had fallen to the floor.

He wouldn't and didn't do his homework. He wouldn't and didn't do anything in school but fool away his time. He was smart enough because his other teachers had said so. And up to the present time he had behaved pretty well and made his grades.

Conflicting Views

When he was in bed his mother spoke to his father. "I'm worried about Algy. What are we going to do with him? He's getting terrible. I think I'll go and have another talk with the principal."

"And I think I'm going out and cut a nice birch rod and while the life out of the kid," declared his dad.

"Oh, Tom, you can't do that. He's only eight."

"I don't care. He's got to learn to obey people and do what he's told whether he likes it or not. He may as well learn that lesson now as later."

"Well, I think you're wrong. I know children are supposed to learn unquestioning obedience, but I know when I was little and had to walk the chalk mark something was boiling up in me all the time. I think it's wrong to make children do things they hate day after day, especially when they are so young. As they get older and understand the whys and wherefores of education better, it's different."

"That's all blather. What that young fellow needs is a good trouncing."

"All right. But if I had that Miss What's-her-name-for-a-teacher. I think I'd do just what Algy's doing. She has no personality, no understanding, no nothing. Just discipline and hard work. Lessons are bad enough without having everything connected with school turned into something you hate. I feel terribly sorry for Algy. He liked his other teachers."

Mother's Appeal

Next day she said to Algy, "Will you listen to Mother, dear?"

It's about school. I don't blame you for hating it. But I hate housework and I dislike many people I have to deal with every day. But I do what I have to do because it just has to be done. The same way with Daddy. He never did like his work, but see what a good job he makes of it."

"That is what you call being a good sport, my dear. And manly. But how's this? We can work better if we think we're going to have a good time afterward. I'm going to get you a dog. And every day you and I and the dog will go somewhere. We'll take Charlie along, too."

"Don't you think you could work better if you were thinking, 'I'm a big man doing a job I don't like. But there are just as many happy things to do as there are hard things and I'm a pretty lucky boy'?"

Algy buckled down to work. He became interested in so many things outside of school that it carried him through the weary hours.

It may not always work, but I think his mother was wiser than his dad.

THE UNKNOWN BLONDE

(All Rights Reserved).

BY LAURA LOU BROOKMAN.

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

On a stormy November evening DAVID BANNISTER, a pretty blond girl and offers her a lift in the cab in which he is riding. Her handbag opens and he sees a revolver inside.

Next morning Bannister reads that TRACY KING, orchestra leader in a movie theatre, has been found dead in his apartment. Police are searching for an "unknown blond" who visited King the night before. Bannister, remembering the girl in the taxi, is puzzled.

He sees her again that morning. The girl tells him her name is JULIET FRANCE and that she knows nothing of the murder.

He goes to see his old friend, JIM PAXTON, editor of the Tremont Post, and arranges to work on the King murder case for the Post. Bannister and J. RANDOLPH GAINES, star reporter, go to the police headquarters. They learn that HERMAN SCURLACH, unemployed, is in jail, accused of writing a threatening letter to King.

Bannister decides to take a look at the room where King died and leaves. On the way he stops to see Juliet France. He is informed that she has left the hotel.

CHAPTER VIII

Bannister repeated, in a tone of disbelief, "Checked out? You mean she's gone? But there must be—"

"Miss France checked out of the hotel early this afternoon," the voice over the wire told him crisply.

Bannister heard the click that meant that the telephone call had been disconnected. He put down the instrument he had been holding, stared at it rather stupidly for an instant and then turned away. He walked slowly across the lobby toward the door.

But he had not taken a dozen steps before he was back. He said to the room clerk, "I understand that Miss France has left the hotel. Do you know if she left a message for me? My name is Bannister."

The room clerk turned. "I see, sir," he said and began sorting through a collection of envelopes. A moment later he shook his head. "There's no message," he said.

"And she didn't leave a forwarding address?" Bannister persisted. He knew, even as he asked, that she hadn't. Juliet France had gone away from the Hotel Tremont because she didn't want anyone to be able to find her. Evidently she hadn't trusted him, hadn't believed him when he said he would try to help her.

Or did this disappearance have an entirely different meaning? Did it mean that morning was a tangle of lies, made out of whole cloth to appeal to his sympathy? Did it mean she was a clever adventuress?

"No, there's no forwarding address," the clerk said briefly.

Bannister thanked him, turned back toward the door. This time he went out to the street, hailed a taxi and told the driver to take him to the Shelby Arms.

He felt rather as though he had dived from a high spring-board and landed flat. The more he thought of it the more he was convinced that the girl had used him to null her purpose—and how well she had done it, too!—then artfully gone her way. What those purposes were, what part he had played in them, Bannister could not guess. Of course her story about going to see Tracy King to ask for a job was ridiculous on the face of it. So was her explanation about the revolver. And she had said she had no friends and was so terrified of the police and the tears had come into her eyes!

Bannister muttered, "Damn!" and drew his brows together. He had forgotten that he had gone into this thing to help Juliet France, that his visit to Jim Paxton's office and the sudden, impromptu suggestion that he should go to work for the Post had all come about because of the girl. He wanted to know now, more than ever, who Juliet France was. He wanted to know whether or not she had killed Tracy King—and if so, why.

The cab slowed and came to a halt. Bannister got out, paid the driver and walked slowly up the steps. For an instant he had a vision of a slender, green-clad figure silhouetted against that entrance—a figure that drew back from the stormy night, then darted into it. But the vision was gone almost as quickly as it had come.

Bannister pulled the heavy door open and stepped inside. He was in a large, oblong entrance, carpeted and furnished almost like a room in an impressive private home. Chairs, a divan and tables were arranged with taste. He noticed a tapestry that he did not like and a tall vase of bronze chrysanthemums placed before a mirror. The only detail that was unlike a home was the hotel desk at the rear. A man stood there. A little at his left sat the switchboard operator and as Bannister moved forward he heard the operator's softly slurred, "What number are you calling?"

Bannister addressed the clerk. "Are you Mr. Link?" he asked. "My name is Bannister and I've a note here from Chief Henley."

A swift change of expression—was it alarm or something stronger?—came over the clerk's face. "Yes, I'm Mr. Link," he admitted. "You say Chief Henley sent you."

Bannister presented the envelope containing the note. It had been scrawled with a pen and was nothing more than a request that Mr. Bannister, the bearer, be permitted to see the rooms Tracy King had occupied in the hotel.

"Why—why, yes, certainly," the clerk agreed quickly. "I'll take you up myself. If you'll just wait a moment while I get someone to take charge of the desk."

He disappeared. The telephone operator, a pretty girl whose Irish ancestry was unmistakable, had been watching Bannister with open interest. Now she kept her eyes averted, because elaborately preoccupied with her switchboard.

"Doesn't want to talk," Bannister decided. He turned his back on her and continued to inspect the large room.

Link was back shortly, a younger man beside him. The newcomer stepped behind the desk. Link said, "Now Mr. Bannister—in the tone he might have used with a prospective hotel tenant, and led the way to the elevator."

Neither spoke during the ascent. Bannister thought that the uniformed youth who operated the elevator displayed considerable interest as they stopped on the third floor and that he lingered to see which direction they would take. Then the sliding door closed and the elevator was on its way.

Side by side the two men moved down the corridor. Evidently Mr. Link was not overly experienced in the ways of police departments and detectives. "You're a special investigator, are you? Mr. Bannister?" he asked. "Is that why you're here?"

Bannister said, "yes" and felt that he was not misrepresenting the facts.

"It's a terrible thing—Mr. King's death," the hotel clerk went on. "Nothing like it has ever happened since I've been here. It's been a shock to everyone—the guests, the help, everyone! They all knew Mr. King. He was always so pleasant. Such a fine looking young man."

"It was you who found him, wasn't it?" Bannister asked.

"Yes, Mr. Druggan and I. He didn't come back to the theatre and Mr. Druggan came to find out what was the matter. When he knocked and couldn't get an answer he came downstairs and we went back together."

"I suppose the police are sure it couldn't have been suicide?"

"Oh, impossible! The coroner said that was out of the question because there were no powder burns—and then there wasn't any gun. No, it couldn't have been suicide. Besides Mr. King had no reason to do such a thing!"

"I wonder," said Bannister. A moment later he asked, "Isn't there anyone from headquarters here now?"

"Not now," Link said with a shake of his head. "There were half a dozen here last night. The Chief, too. This morning there were two men—detectives—out, asking questions of the servants and some of the tenants. I'm afraid they didn't learn much. If they would only find that woman—"

His words broke off as he turned the key in the lock. The door swung open.

Bannister saw a living room, it was wide, with three windows at the end. There was an attractive dark rug on the floor, attractive, figured draperies at the windows. Aside from these details the room was completely in disorder. A desk, standing before the window had been rifled. Chairs were at all angles, one of them upturned. Pillows from the divan-port had fallen to the floor. Dirt had been tramped into the carpet and there had been several places where ashes had been spilled.

"We haven't done anything to the rooms at all," Link was quick to explain. "Everything is just as they left it last night. Captain McNeal said they weren't to be touched. I locked the door myself and it hasn't been opened since."

Bannister considered the wreckage before him. That was to be expected, of course. The photographs at headquarters would give a record of the appearance of the room exactly as it had been when King's body was found. The disorder indicated that the search of the apartment had been most thorough. No chance that Henley's men had missed anything.

"In there," said Link, "is where we found him. In the bed room."

A boyish voice called from the corridor. "Oh, Mr. Link! Mr. Link!"

The clerk turned. "Excuse me," he said, "I'll have to see what they want. I'll be back in a moment."

Bannister nodded. He heard the door close behind him as he moved forward, halting in the entrance to the bedroom.

It was smaller than the other room and it, too, had been completely disordered. A dark, brownish stain on the gray carpet told its unmistakable story. Bannister knelt to inspect the stain.

Even before he heard a sound he

NAVAL TREATY

MR. BINGHAM GIVES ASSURANCES

London, Dec. 1.

Reference to the London Naval Treaty was made by the United States Ambassador in London, Mr. Robert Bingham, at the Thanksgiving Day dinner of the American Society of London last night.

Expressing his assurance that both the United States and Britain would live up to the terms of the Treaty, the Ambassador, in connection with the present naval programmes of two countries, said the only question involved was whether within the terms of the Treaty they would build more ships and smaller ships or fewer ships and larger ships.

Both nations, strictly within terms of Treaty, were pursuing a course which their needs and their circumstances make desirable. He added the greatest cause for thanksgiving in an anxious world to-day was the fact that the two great democracies of the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United States seek only peace, and thus stand for the welfare and progress of all humanity. Neither has any hostility towards any other nation, nor any designs upon the territory of anyone else, and any purpose except that by promoting the prosperity and welfare of their own peoples and by exerting their great weight throughout the world on behalf of peace, they will contribute to the welfare of the whole world.

Thousands have enlarged pores and do not know it. Every enlarged pore is due to irritation. Unless you get rid of skin pore irritation, from matter collects, and the consequence is unsightly blackheads, pimples, blotches, sallowness, darkened complexion and coarse rough skin.

Crème Tokalon Skinfood, now contains a marvelous new soft, creamy wax, extracted from flowers, combined with predigested dairy cream and olive oil. It is tonic, astringent and nourishing—penetrates instantly, softens irritated skin glands, tightens enlarged pores, dissolves blackheads so that they fall away, whitens and softens drier, roughest skin. Keeps the driest skin fresh and delicately moist but not greasy. Equally adapted to take off the shine from an oily skin or sleek shiny nose.

Crème Tokalon Skinfood (White Colour) gives indescribable new skin beauty and freshness in 3 days—such as can be obtained in no other way. It should be used every morning. Many an attractive proposal of marriage has been inspired by a lovely soft white skin and beautiful complexion.

GERMAN OFFICER
SUITS AUTHORFALSE STORY OF
AN ACTRESSMYSTICAL "CLICK"
OF THE FEET

Passages in a book, "Oh, Oh! How the War was Won," led to a libel action which was settled in the King's Bench Division.

Captain Franz von Rintelen, of Cleverland-quiere, London, had sued Messrs. Hutchinson and Co., Publishers, Ltd., of Paternoster-row, E.C., and Mr. Hugh Cleland Roy, the author of the book.

Mr. W. N. Stables, for Captain Rintelen, said he was an officer in the German Navy, who, in 1915, was engaged in secret service work on behalf of his country in the United States.

The book, "Oh, Oh! How the War was Won," was written by Mr. Roy, who described himself as the private secretary to the Director of Naval Intelligence.

There were passages in the book, said counsel, which purported to describe how Captain von Rintelen was captured. One of them said:

"When his ship reached Southampton a Scotland Yard detective appeared on the scene, found von Rintelen in his state-room with a well-known West End actress with whom he had become very friendly on the voyage, and arrested him. He was brought before Admiral Hall at the Admiralty."

It also gave an account of his first interrogation by Admiral Hall.

"Salute!"

"I will not read the whole of the article," said Mr. Stables. "It goes on to describe the most ludicrous scenes."

Counsel read this passage:

"The Director of Naval Intelligence was dissatisfied with the result of the first interview, and a further examination at Scotland Yard was arranged, at which the late Lord Abinger, who spoke perfectly German, and myself were present. The cross-examination was barely under way when Lord

Abinger suddenly snapped out in German, 'Salute!'

"Von Rintelen automatically responded by clicking his heels together and giving the naval salute. He was dismissed. The von tradition of his service had been too much for him."

The article also described Captain von Rintelen's "Escape from Dartington Hall, his departure, and what Admiral Hall said when he heard that he was caught."

With the exception of the fact that Captain von Rintelen was arrested while proceeding from America to Germany on a German boat, added counsel, the whole of the passage was untrue from beginning to end.

No Actress There

"Von Rintelen was, in fact, stopped by a British ship off Ramsgate," counsel went on. "He was taken off the vessel by British naval officers in uniform. The vessel never went to Southampton at all, and no Scotland Yard detective was there in any capacity whatever."

"So far as Captain von Rintelen knows, there was no actress well-known or otherwise on the boat, and if there was he never set eyes on her."

"The description of the interview with Admiral Hall is quite untrue. The episode about Captain von Rintelen losing his head

Women golfers at the Wyndham Golf Club have been asked not to appear on the course in trousers. The Club Committee discussed the matter, and, although no new rule has been framed on the subject, women members have been given a hint that it is the Committee's wish that they should not appear on the course in trousers.

and saluting is sheer invention, and, though he was eventually locked up in Dartington Hall, he never escaped.

The defendants had not sought to justify a word of the article, counsel stated. There had been no attempt to publish the passages complained of.

Mr. Theobald Mathew, for the defendants, said they were in fact no truth in the allegations complained of and both defendants expressed their deep regret for the annoyance that had been caused to Captain von Rintelen.

WINTER
PROBLEMS
Of The PEOPLE

SMASH colds, flu and pneumonia attacks with ASPRO. It's the best thing you can do to keep the home free from these ill-fortune winter months. There is no quicker, safer, or more certain method to fight winter health complaints than by taking ASPRO according to directions. ASPRO stops colds, flu and rheumatic attacks in the bud because after ingestion in the system it is an anti-pyretic or fever reducer—it is both a powerful analgesic and solvent of uric acid, and is anti-periodic—antispasmodic and antispasmodic. For 17 years ASPRO has proved itself the greatest medicine yet known for colds, influenza and pain attacks. It is safe, sure and certain, and is now the most used medicine throughout the world. ASPRO does not harm the heart or stomach—there are no dangerous after-effects and it conforms to the standards of purity laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia—the ruling authority of the Medical profession.

'ASPRO'

WILL GIVE QUICK RELIEF

5 MINUTES

What 'ASPRO' Does:

FOR RELIEF WITH

there is nothing instantly about ASPRO. Its action is quick—safe, effective and definite. It gives you relief in 5 to 10 minutes and then goes on to dispel or dissolve the cause of the pain, allowing Nature to effect its own cure. Furthermore, you get no harmful after-effects. Don't ASPRO as it is steadily eliminated from the system a few hours after being taken. It neither depresses, deadens nor drags.

'ASPRO' BRINGS
SWEET
SLEEP
TO THE SLEEPLESS

There are many thousands of people who now have sweet peaceful sleep who hitherto hardly knew the meaning of a period of restfulness. 'ASPRO' has brought about the transformation by its sweet soothing influence on the nerves, and breaking up of local feverish conditions. Two tablets before retiring is the usual dose.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1 It Stops Violent Headaches in 5 to 10 minutes. | 9 A box (10 tablets) with 2 'ASPRO' Tablets will smash up a Cold or Flu attack in one night. |
| 2 It Brings Sweet Sleep to the Sleepless. | 10 It Reduces Temperature in 5 minutes. |
| 3 It Relieves Rheumatism in one hour. | 11 It can be taken at any time in the day, at home, at work, or anywhere. |
| 4 It Relieves Children's Growing Pains. | 12 It gives the greatest relief known to women at their times of periodical distress. |
| 5 It Saves many a Sound Tooth by Removing Toothache. | 13 It Stops the ill After-Effects of Alcohol. |
| 6 It Brings Relief without causing sickness, indigestion or a craving. | 14 It Relieves Rheumatism and Neuralgia by reducing the fever. |
| 7 It Stops Pain without harming the Heart. | 15 A box (10 tablets) will smash up a Cold or Flu attack in one night. |
| 8 It soothes any Irritation. | |

'ASPRO' is Woman's Best Friend

Healthy the greatest thing in ASPRO. It is a safe, effective and definite. It gives you relief in 5 to 10 minutes and then goes on to dispel or dissolve the cause of the pain, allowing Nature to effect its own cure. Furthermore, you get no harmful after-effects. Don't ASPRO as it is steadily eliminated from the system a few hours after being taken. It neither depresses, deadens nor drags.

LISTEN! FOR THE LAST TIME! ALL ASHORE THAT'S GOIN' ASHORE!

AND OF COURSE, "JUNIOR" HAS TO GO AND GET LOST, TEN MINUTES BEFORE SAILING TIME... LIKELY DOWN IN THE ENGINE ROOM OR UP IN THE RIGGING, GOIN' SOME EXPLORING

THE LADY WHO JUST KNOWS SHE'S GOING TO BE SEASICK--AND FEELS IT COMING ON--BEFORE THE SHIP EVEN LEAVES THE DOCK. --THERE'S NO USE ARGUING WITH HER--HER MIND'S MADE UP

...AND YOU'RE EXPECTED TO STAND ON THE DOCK AND WAVE TILL THE VESSEL IS WELL OUT TO SEA--IT SHOULD BE POSSIBLE TO HIRE SOMEONE TO DO THIS WORK

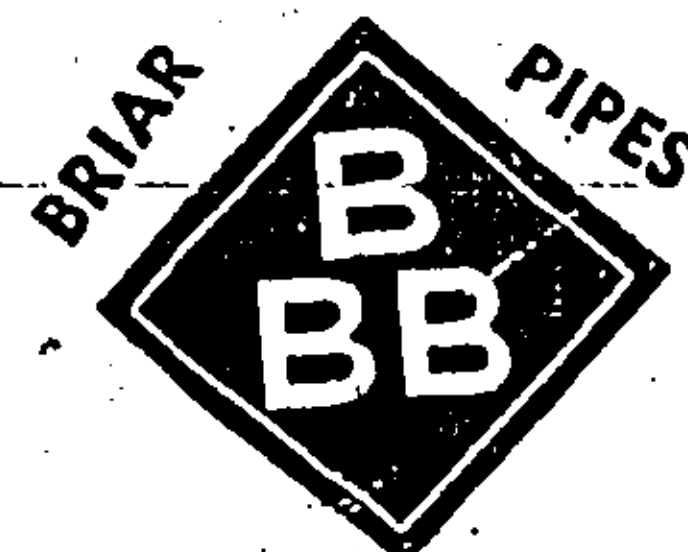

WELL THERE ISN'T MUCH CHANCE OF ME SITTING AT THE CAPTAIN'S TABLE--NOT IF HE SEES THIS PASSPORT PHOTOGRAPH!

THE ONLY THING YOU HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT IS THE EQUINOCTIAL GALES---I DUNNO WHEN THEY'RE DUE, BUT I THINK IT'S TOMORROW. HOWEVER, LET'S NOT TALK ABOUT THAT!

NOTED AMERICAN FINANCIER DEAD

MR. RICHARD MELLON

Philadelphia, Dec. 8.
Mr. Richard Mellon, brother of Mr. Andrew Mellon, one of the richest men in America, died today.

Mr. Richard Mellon was one of the partners in the great banking business founded by his father, the late Mr. Thomas Mellon. The Mellon National Bank, the Union Trust Company and other substantial concerns, were part of the tremendous financial institution which the senior Mellon and later, his sons, built up.

Unlike his brother, Andrew, Richard was not a politician but he was a successful businessman and one of the most brilliant financial minds in the United States.

methods more radical than have yet been adopted.

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

This struggle between man and natural forces has attained homeric proportions, and it is whispered in the very near future the P.W.D. will be striking out on an altogether new line. Beyond this bare hint, we can no more anticipate it than the child looking in open-eyed wonderment at all these things, is futilely asking the question: "Will they do this, papa, or will they do that?"

This much at all events is clear: that the new vehicular pier, however much it has served a public need, has become a costly constructional experiment, if in the end it will not prove to be a costly failure also.

Far be it for us to doubt the wisdom or ingenuity of the engineers that be, but it appears to us with only a limited knowledge of these technical matters, that much expense could have been avoided in the first instance had expert knowledge been employed.

As it is, the position could well closely approach the classical case of Humpty-Dumpty: it has had a great fall, and three-score engineers and threescore more may not remake the pier as it could have been before.

THE APOSTLESHIP OF PRAYER.

SILVER JUBILEE OF ROSARY CHURCH CENTRE

In commemoration of the Silver Jubilee of the establishment of the Apostleship of Prayer with the centre in the Rosary Church, members of this prayer circle and others of the Catholic congregation of the Colony attended special services held yesterday at the Church.

A series of Masses were said in the morning, and during the day the Most Blessed Sacrament was exposed for public adoration.

In the evening, the Litany of the Sacred Heart was chanted, this being followed by a Procession around the compound. The day's celebrations wound up with Te Deum and Benediction.

Heading the day's devotional exercises was Fr. Spada, the aged Pastor of the Church, who has been associated with the Institution from the beginning.

SHELTER OPENED

SOCIETY HELPS PLAN
IMPROVED

What may be regarded as the Society's first community attempt at social welfare work was inaugurated
last night when the old St.
Patrick's Church building beside the Police Station at West Point, was put to a very practical use as a shelter for the homeless.

Intended primarily for that class of unfortunates who are unable to find a place to sleep, it was decided that in the course of the evening, when the shelter should be closed, the men who were to be admitted would be given a hot bath and a good meal.

The shelter was opened at 8.30 p.m.

Although the time was short,
the shelter was very successful in the accommodation of the men who were admitted. The shelter was closed at 11 p.m. and the men were given a hot bath and a good meal.

When it is considered that the number admitted last night was over a hundred, the success of the shelter is a very good thing. The shelter was opened at 8.30 p.m.
and the men who were to be admitted were given a hot bath and a good meal.

The First Night

The shelter on this first night opened at 8.30 p.m. and the distribution of the first lot of received fell on Young Ping, aged 25, an odd job worker. His one or two personal belongings were taken into charge by the shelter, and he was set along to that night's place, a wash with hot water, a steaming cup of tea, and most comforting of all, a bed. For a pillow he had a woolen block and the blankets he had two single ones. Soon he found himself in an interesting company and conversation being permitted, proved himself sociable.
The talk was what might be expected; it turned on the daily serious question of work, and incidentally, the methods of getting out what at best was a difficult livelihood.

Nor did he appear to averse to a little advice, and was all attention when a Chinese parson, Mr. Li Kuan-yun, embraced an opportunity under ideal circumstances, to give religious point to the work.

Young Ping typifies the average character received into the shelter,
but without the more pitiful features of some cases. Indeed, it could be said that the lame,
the halt and the blind were all
included in last night's "catches," being the object of more than ordinary care, they were shepherded into the lower bunks.

Stayed Where They Were.

During the evening, the Rev.
Mr. N. V. Halward made two excursions into adjoining streets
and brought back destitute men.
He reported having encountered street sleepers who, possessed of sufficient coverings, appeared to be quite comfortable where they were, and as they did not appear to be particularly desirous of being shifted, were left where they were. Others with hardly a stitch of covering, were only too glad to be accommodated.

With readiness everyone of those who went in consented to a bath with hot water and soap.
Nor did they stop there, but scrubber themselves with a scrupulousness that was amazing.

No Room For Women.

By the time the shelter closed,
promptly at 9 p.m., 51 of the total of 105 beds were occupied. Two applicants who failed to secure admission because of contagious skin diseases, were told to return to-day
when they would be sent to Hospital. Three women also presented themselves, but as accommodation for their sex has not yet been found, they had to leave.

During the course of the evening,
Sir Henry and Lady Pollock dropped in to view the work. Other visitors included Mr. R. H. Kotowall, and Mr. J. D. Bush. Those assisting in the work on this first night included Miss Ruby Mow-fung, Dr. S. W. Phoon, Dr. Khoo, Rev. N. V. Halward, and others, including Boy Scouts and other volunteers.

Ambrosia

Best and Purest
for Baby

Ambrosia is milk from Devon meadows, famous for its nourishing qualities. Quickly prepared and always pure, it is the safest milk for nursery
use, and so easily digested that it succeeds when other foods fail.

Most Economical
for general use

For household purposes, Ambrosia is ideal. As a beverage its natural creamy flavour is a welcome change, and it makes the most delicious dishes. Keep a tin of Ambrosia handy, and you are assured of a supply of rich, pure milk
whenever required.

Neuralgia, Gout, Sore-throat, Toothache, or Asthma? If you do, will you allow us to solve the question of securing a cure,
of course, a permanent one, and
put an end to these dreadful enemies of humanity? Or do you like to be handicapped in society, in business or in your daily association with your strong, stout friends? For your own good, we would strongly advise you to have an open mind, and to make use of what you can call your true companion, instead of waiting for the time when you are attacked by disease, the youngest daughter of Mr. Fortune, Miss Fortune. When you are living and enjoying the gifts of nature, this unseen thief creeps into your system, and ruins you physically and mentally. Our preparation THE TIGER BALM, which has nothing to do with animal fat, or any injurious substance, will safeguard your interest. When you are in trouble, just pay a few copper coins, and the next moment you will find that this world of sorrow and pain is suddenly changed to one of peace and prosperity.

NEW CHARTER FOR WORKLESS

Much-needed reform in the British unemployment insurance scheme is promised by the Bill, dealing with the subject, which has just been introduced in the House of Commons. On the one hand, the system has been undoubtedly abused; on the other, its relief provisions have, in some centres, especially in connexion with the Means Test, been harshly and unsympathetically operated. Add to this the fact that the Insurance Fund had been permitted to get into an almost hopelessly insolvent state, and the need for wholesale reform becomes obvious. The Bill now produced, so far as can be judged from the summary to hand, represents a sound and equitable method of dealing with the problem. It is the outcome of protracted consultations with local government experts, trade union leaders, and welfare workers. In many respects it falsifies the numerous forecasts made from time to time of its likely provisions. For example, far from the period of benefit being reduced, it is to be extended in certain cases, and what is more, the number of unemployed receiving relief will be increased. In this connexion, the plan for making the benefit dependent on the contributions, and for extending it in the case of those with good industrial records, represents a distinct improvement on the existing position. A further helpful feature is the decision to increase the number of junior instructional centres, which should help greatly in preventing that moral degeneration which is a concomitant of prolonged idleness amongst youths. All these reforms, and others as well, are to be accomplished in such a way that not only will the Insurance Fund be placed on a permanently solvent basis, but there will be an actual surplus, which will be devoted to the relief of the most deserving causes. Marked and very necessary changes are to be made in the system of distributing benefits and relief. This is to be done by the creation of new Unemployment Assistance Boards, to be supervised by a Central Commission, which will in turn be controlled by the Ministry of Labour. The result, taken in conjunction with the State's assumption of responsibility for the able-bodied unemployed who have not qualified for benefits, should be to remove many of the anomalies and injustices arising from the handling of cases by the poor law authorities. Greater uniformity of treatment should ensue, and the worst features in the working of the Means Test be eliminated. Taken all in all, the

NOTES OF THE DAY

THE CRY OF THE TECHNOCRAT

Britain's endeavour to tackle the unemployment question as it stands to-day appears to be an excellent and well-conceived effort. It is, however, over-optimistic in one respect, in laying claim to permanency of solution. The cry of the technocrat has not been loudly heard in Britain as yet, but the facts and figures upon which the theory of Technocracy have been founded are being thrust more and more before the attention of those who have any reason to study the tragedy of unemployment.

THREE FOR EIGHTY-NINE

There are reconstructed blast furnaces in use in England to-day, whose productive capacity has been increased to 4,000 tons per week where formerly 1,500 tons were produced. At these furnaces a charger car has been introduced which automatically unloads the bunker, ore, coke, or limestone into a large container. This container is also a weighing machine. The operator in charge knows exactly the quantity going into the box, and controls the operation by which the load is deposited upon an elevator which ascends and automatically charges the furnace. Where, formerly, eighty-nine men were employed at front and back of the furnace, there are now only three—the operator above mentioned, a charger-driver, and a landing-man.

SHIPBUILDING ROBOT

In the shipbuilding and ship-repairing trades we have recently seen the appearance of a totally new craft. A body of craftsmen, to be known as ship-welders, is to displace the riveters, blacksmiths, caulkers, holders-up, heaters, and catchermen: one man with a blow lamp will replace ten men engaged in the operation of cutting out old rivets; one welder will do the work of three squads of riveters, or fifteen men; three welders will do the work of thirty to forty angle iron smiths. The same displacement of labour is occurring with the use of the oxy-acetylene torch in repairing work on locomotives, by which four men can now do what it took eight men three weeks to do. A pair of locomotive tyres which took 15 to 20 hours to turn can now be turned in one hour twenty minutes. A man with a power chisel can do the work of ten men. By the aid of automatic machinery 16,320 brass screws, with threading and slotting attachment, can be produced in eight hours. Steel nuts, countersunk from both sides and tapped at the last operation, are being turned out at the rate of 4,800 in eight hours.

THE REMEDY

What is the remedy? The problem is dominated by two factors: the great increase in wealth, due to improved processes, and the diminishing quantity of human effort. From this angle of approach the Trade Unions have framed a policy of a 40-hour week. Reduction of working hours in the Trade Union view, is clearly one of the means by which the opportunities of work can be more equitably distributed. It is an eminently sensible proposal, based on the hard economic fact that machine technology has progressively rendered human labour redundant in all the highly organised industries.

THE FINAL SOLUTION

But is a reduction to forty hours a week sufficient? The figure is based upon the present volume of unemployment and upon the assumption that the new openings for labour which would be provided would be equal to the twenty per cent. proportional reduction of hours. It has been falsified in the United States and would be falsified in Britain. The highly organised industries will continue to dispense with labour, but it is foolish to expect the men to be absorbed, except in small quantities, by other industries. Alleviation there may be, but the essential problem will always remain outside the scope of any action by any group of employers or any Trade Union. There is, of course, a solution, but it is one of the future not of to-day. Only as science continues to advance, rendering the problem more and more pressing, will it be accepted that complete and effective State control both of production and the distribution of labour affords the only guarantee of an equitable solution.

Government would appear to have evolved an admirable scheme, and one which may well help to stem some of the dissatisfaction with its policies which has latterly been so evident amongst the working-classes.

MR. PEPYS IN HONGKONG

Nov. 25th.—Up very betimes as is my custom these days upon a Saturday and to my office where I fall to ordering my papers, which being done to the King's great shippe Kent where I do pay my visit of state. Later to the Clubbe where I fall talking with Mr. Povy and Creed of this and that, and more particularly of this wrecking of the passenger air-shippe that flies from Shanghai to Canton, but crashes in the fog. Creed tells us none are killed which do be a most marvellous chance, as it wanted but a little that all should perish. And as I say to Mr. Povy, it will be many a year before this business of air travel be of reasonable safety in these parts, the tales of those who be of the profession notwithstanding. To the Krickett at King's Park where I see the Sailors play pretty well and the Army fall of winning their match. Back to the Clubbe where I don my garments of ceremony and so to the Lower Peake Tram Station. But Lord! when I do get there I am put in a great fright by a box which do suddenly light itself from within, and therein I perceive a bottle of whiskey but behind a strong glass front. And then out goes the light and anon relights itself later. Yet though I search most carefully I cannot find the slot wherein I should put my money, and so am choused of the draught I had meant to take, and this do seem to me the silliest possible thing in the world. Dined upon the Peake and sat at Cards but so often did I sit with pretty and most ingenious ladies that my skill was somewhat at fault. Home late and the lift being stopped was forced to walk up to bed.

26th. (Lord's Day).—This day I fall to ordering my books and gear in my Chamber. And later walking upon the Peake, the weather being very fair.

27th.—Very busy all day, and after I do eat my dinner with Mr. Franco at the Clubbe and there fall talking of Ireland and how the Spanish tyrant doth seek to stand at an election in Northern Ireland. Yet I believe not that his impertinence will carry him so far. Later comes Creed who tells us of the piracy of the French ship, but it seems a very friendly affair and none any the worse save that the passengers and others be robbed and four kidnapped. Which puts me in mind that I had read in the news-sheets these few days since that pirates of Bias Bay had been seen in the Colony. But it seems they were not apprehended and are now gone. But should our friends in China seek them in their villages I doubt not much might be found. Yet there being so much rumour of war in Fukien it seems not strange that local disorder in Kwong Tung shall come, of which the blame shall be upon the trouble-makers of the peace in that place. Mr. Povy later asks me why they were not apprehended here; but, as Creed says, to know a man as a pirate is one thing but to apprehend him without warrant and with no crime done in the Colony is mighty different, and especially when there be so many that seek to make pleasant the lot of the criminal.

28th.—This day the weather changes and so, after my office be ordered, I to the bowling alley and roll there with much good company, and all very jolly and youthsome. But it grieves me that I find Mr. Pitt comes not there in these days. There I drink a flaggon or two of ale and hold some discourse with Sir W. Pen and others upon a Challenge for the Humphreys Cup. After that I may seek to avoid a stiffness in the joints to a mighty hot bath where I lie and read the papers. And there I learn that at the town of San Jose in California the mob doth break the prison, and lynch two men who be suspected of kidnapping but are not yet brought to trial for it. And this the Governor of California (or so the news-sheets hath it) declares to be the best lesson California hath ever given the Country. Which if it be true is a mighty strange utterance in the mouth of the highest officer whose duty it be to administer law and government. And to my mind, I esteem much higher his former brother, the Governor of South Carolina, as a man of wiser sayings.

29th.—This day I dine upon the Peake with an olde friend, but Lord how the rain comes down. Yet, as I suppose it shall help the reservoirs, as for these two days it has been pretty wet. Home very late but find that near by there is a party and one plays upon the ukelele, which is tuneful enough though at best methinks it is but a bawble. But I do desire mightily that the girl should cease of singing.

30th.—Up very betimes and after trimming myself to the office where I find little business, trade being slack and yesterday a dull and rainy day which doth ever so operate. But the day is most fair and so I take a wherry and to a King's great Shippe in the Harbour where I drink a glass or two of Hollands waters, and so back to the Clubbe. And indeed I had been minded to call upon my olde acquaintance in Cumberland and Suffolk, but they hearing of it I doubt not had been taken themselves to sea. But I do trust that my loss shall be for the Navy's gain. Later to my chirurgon who doth inject me against the typhoid and to my then pleasure tell me that this, my second shot, will be enough, and so back to the Clubbe with much cheer and writing in my chamber.

1st. December.—But Lord! When I wake early, I am full of akes and pains so that I can scarce rise up, and so to the office where I do feel that a sick doggie be a prince compared with me. Yet going out later for a morning draft I do find Mr. Povy who tells me he did spend last night and much of this day in the small hours at St. Andrew's Ball and that there he drinks, he knows not how, of his own accord so much wine that he was even almost fozed, and his head ached all night and still did. And thereat I did recommend a hayre of the doggie that did bite him, and so we drink the neck of a horse very comfortably and feel better. And it is borne in upon me that Mr. Povy was not alone in his plight, and I do make a vow that this shall not happen to me upon St. George's. This day comes the homeward P. & O. and going not to the wharf, lies in the stream at a buoy, which indeed was the custom of olde, and a mighty inconvenient one too. And what this may mean I know not, but I trust it becomes not the regular practice. For if it doth, what shall become of the professional seers-off I know not. Later writing my mail, and so to bed.

EXCITING STYLES for WINTER WEAR

Irregular necklines, fancy sleeves, unusual tailoring—these lend a new appeal to the late fall stylings

by Julia

A THREE-PIECE, gray knit-tweed suit is just the thing for the Girl-About-Town. The blouse is bright red and the scarf on the jacket is lined with the same color. The skirt has two high pleats for comfort.

COSTUMES FROM
I. and S. LEFKOWITZ,
NEW YORK

Winter clothes are charming and utterly feminine. But they can be practical, too.

There are waterproofed fabrics on the market to-day and you'll go a long way before you find anything more practical than a dress which doesn't spot when it rains. And you can smile pleasantly when the waiter spills water on your shoulder if you know that the liquid is going to do nothing more than drip off on the floor.

The new silhouette goes in for making you look tall, sleek and glamorous. High necklines help to achieve the long, suave lines and the full-bosomed effect which is so important right now.

Let your waist be as tiny as you possibly can have it. Gone are the days of harsh, schoolboy lines. The object is to be feminine and to prove it by presenting a feminine silhouette.

All high necklines give the desired long, suave line, but if you think a plain high neck is too severe for you, remember that the softening, modified ones are newer any way.

Some high necklines are filled in with handsome lace. No danger of looking severe, if a bit of flattering lace rests against your neck.

Other necklines are patterned after the ever-popular cowl idea. But these new cowl necklines are very different. They are high and at the same time softly draped.

Most waistlines are softly bloused. With belts taking their place right at the normal waistline, a more graceful effect is gained when there is a slight fullness just above the belt.

No two skirts are alike. Circular, straight or straight with pleats—each design has its own place in the silhouette which spells smart fashion right now.

Gored skirts have a certain amount of popularity, especially in evening frocks. And don't discard an evening gown just because it has a bias skirt instead of a straight one. The two designs vie with each other for favour.

AN OFFICE dress in green flat crepe has a gracious banding which goes around the high neckline and down the front of the waist to the belt, where it widens and extends right to the bottom of the straight skirt. Bronze ornaments are placed midway on the banding.

PERFECT for the woman with a mature figure is this dress of waterproofed black velvet with a surprise closing. The high neckline is filled in with beautiful cream lace which also makes the one large rever and the tight long cuffs.

THE SMART matron steps to tea in a brown velvet dress which accentuates its new high neckline with fluting at the shoulders and a handsome rhinestone ornament on one side of the neck. The frock is topped with a Lady Lou hat.

FOR SPECIAL luncheon dates, nothing could be nicer than a wrap-around coat dress of burgundy crepe-faced satin. The crepe side is used for the frock, itself, and satin for the yoke which extends along the top of the sleeves to the elbow.

THE RE-BIRTH OF TURKEY: THE KEMAL REPUBLIC

THE OUTSTANDING FIGURE SINCE THE WAR.

With lavish pomp and ceremony, the tenth anniversary of the Turkish republic has just been celebrated in the capital city of Angora. By the same token it was a celebration of the achievements of Mustapha Kemal, Turkish President and all-powerful dictator. For it is no more possible to separate modern Turkey from Mustapha than to speak of Fascist Italy apart from Mussolini.

In fact, Mustapha had the harder job. Italy was one of the World War victors, and gained prestige and territory, but Turkey was one of the vanquished, and emerged with her once great empire torn to pieces. She had definitely lost Palestine, Syria, Arabia and Mesopotamia. The Thracian plains were held by the Greeks, and Constantinople and the Dardanelles were in possession of English, French and Italian troops while elder statesmen considered tearing them away from Turkey.

Mussolini had only to beat down his already-unpopular opponents before marching on Rome, but Mustapha had to suppress a civil war and fight the Greek army before he could assume power. Mussolini kept the king on the throne, preserving the form of the monarchy. Mustapha sent the Sultan packing and proclaimed a republic. Mussolini composed his differences with the Roman Catholic Church, but Mustapha kicked out the Caliph of the Moslem faithful and drew the teeth of the influential Moslem priests. The Turkish leader also had to deal with an oriental people who did not relish being forced into western ways.

ONT OF TURKS' HANDS.

Italians were pretty largely in control of their own affairs. But the Turks in the days of the Sultans were mainly farmers and soldiers—the men who raised the food and then died for it on the battlefields. The country's international business and banking were in the hands of Greeks. Its local commerce conducted by Armenians and Jews. Part of Mustapha's job was to restore these enterprises to his countrymen.

His origins, like those of Mussolini, were humble. When he was born 52 years ago in Salonika, Mustapha's father was a minor government official. Against his parents' wishes the boy decided to be a soldier, won honours at military schools, and emerged a captain in 1905. In spite of his hatred of the old order and his association with revolutionary elements, he became Chief of Staff of the Third Army before he was 30. After service in Turkey's war with Italy in 1911, and in the Balkan wars of 1912, he was assigned to the defence of Gallipoli when the World War broke out.

Mustapha held the British, Australian and New Zealand troops at bay and forced the Allies to abandon their campaign. Constantinople hailed the "hero of the Dardanelles" and expected him to be greatly rewarded. But jealous Enver Pasha, a perfumed young dandy who commanded the Young Turks, sent him instead to the undesirable command of the army in the Caucasus. It was a nasty job, for the troops were disorganized and fearful of a big drive from the Russians. Mustapha and his chief of staff, deaf little Ismet Pasha, worked frantically to reform their army. They became fast friends and are still co-workers.

BLACK DAYS FOR KEMAL.

Bolshevism swept Russia, and its army in the Caucasus melted away. After retaking several important towns, Mustapha was sent to oppose the British in Syria. Fighting all the way, he finally entrenched his forces at Kitma and prepared a last stand to prevent the enemy from reaching Turkey proper. Then came news of an armistice, and his career seemed over.

Turkey seemed crushed. Her treasury was empty, her fields desolate, thousands of her young men dead, much of her territory in the clutches of the Allies. Mustapha's case seemed equally hopeless. He was poor, and he knew no life but that of a soldier. Like a gaunt wolf he prowled the streets of Constantinople, finally found a ray of hope. A revolutionary spirit was growing in Asia Minor, and the Allies wanted some emissary of the Sultan to go and deal with the recalcitrant Turkish troops. Mustapha was the man selected.

Gladly he went to Anatolia—away from the Allies, away from Tewfik Pasha, the pro-English Premier, away from the Sultan who was a veritable prisoner in his palace. But once he got there, the "loyal" general threw himself with demonic energy into rousing the spirit of resistance. He made Angora the centre of his activities because that ancient town perched on the edge of the Anatolian plains was in a strategic position, hard for the Allies to reach. There he defiantly issued a Turkish declaration of independence. First he sent deputies to a national parliament in Constantinople, but many of them were arrested and deported. So he reconstructed his parliament, made Angora the capital and formed a government with himself as commander-in-chief.

THWARTED GREEK AMBITIONS.

Then came a new danger. The Greeks, who had been encouraged by the Allies to occupy the city of Smyrna, began to dream of conquering all Asia Minor. In 1920 they started a real war, swept the Turks out of Europe and captured Adrianople. In 1921 they started across Asia Minor, with Angora their objective. Mustapha took personal command of his troops, prepared his capital for a siege, and took his stand on the river Sakkarin. For three weeks the Greeks bravely attacked and the Turks held steady. Finally the ranks of the invaders broke and they began their disastrous race back to the sea, with the Turks hard on their heels.

Mustapha wanted to attack the Greeks in Thrace, but the only way to reach them was to cross the Dardanelles from Asia into Europe, and his route was blocked by a British force. Turkish and British armies were within a few

ISTANBUL DOGS

MUNICIPALITY BAFLED.

Though one hundred and fifty thousand dogs have been killed during the past fifteen years, they are still to be seen roving about the by-streets, while at night they congregate in gangs, and, emerging from desolate suburbs, make their appearance in the centre of the town. They are, indeed, a permanent challenge to the authorities. Many methods of destroying them have been tried. The one most used has been the spreading of food containing strychnine. Another method was to pay a premium for each dog killed by the population, payment being made on the presentation of a tail.

The Istanbul municipality has now decided to kill the dogs by gas, and the necessary installations have been erected on the premises of the Society for the Protection of Animals.

hundred yards of each other. One overt act probably would have precipitated a war. But Mustapha wanted no war with England. And England, weary, wanted no quarrel with anybody, however weak. Besides, France and Italy had quietly withdrawn their opposition to the new Turkish regime.

So on October 11, 1922, an armistice was signed and Mustapha won all along the line. The Greeks were to retire from Eastern Thrace, which was to be restored to Turkey. The Allies were to get out of Constantinople, bag and baggage.

His success in the war with Greece, and his triumph in the peace-making with the Allies, made Mustapha Turkey's outstanding man. He had taken demoralized armies and beaten stronger foes. He had faced the greatest powers in Europe and won a chance for Turkey's rebirth. He could now turn his attention to home affairs.

IMPERIAL OVERSEAS LEGION OF FRONTIERSMEN

HISTORY OF A NEW VOLUNTEER ORGANISATION

LOCAL UNIT'S WORK

Almost unknown to the majority of the community, the last twelve months have witnessed the growth of a new volunteer organisation in the Colony, which may lend exceedingly useful service in case of need.

The organisation is the Imperial Overseas Legion of Frontiersmen, a trained uniformed body of Imperial-minded Britons, who have been hiding their light under a bushel, so to speak, largely because they are entirely independent of the Government and do not receive and expect official subsidies.

Few would have known anything about them today but for their appearance on parade at the Cenotaph ceremony, when their smart appearance attracted attention and caused enquiries to be made.

The founder of the Legion was Roger Pocock, soldier, scout, author, traveller and adventurer. He obtained his inspiration from the Royal North West Mounted Police of Canada, which the Legion's uniform is modelled, and from which he was invalided after the second Boer Rebellion. He served in the South African War and, although well over age, in the Great War. Backed by the approval of King Edward VII and Lord Kitchener, he founded the Legion in 1904 and is still one of its most enthusiastic members, holding the rank of Commissioner.

The Legion does not indulge in the political game, although it enrolls men of all religions, politics and classes who are Imperialists and take an active interest in military training, who are prepared to organise themselves into self-supporting units throughout the Empire, capable of expansion in times of necessity. The Commandant-General is Daniel Patrick Driscoll, C.M.G., D.S.O., who had the reputation of being the best column commander in the South African War, and who commanded the 25th (Frontier) Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers in the Great War, giving the Fusiliers several battle honours. Selous, the famous big game hunter, was killed leading a company of this battalion.

LOCAL UNIT.

The Hongkong unit was formed in September, 1932, and had made sufficiently rapid progress by January this year to be able to establish its headquarters and clubhouse at 19 Waterloo Road, Kowloon, where they are still to be found.

Members of the local branch of the Legion pay ten dollars entrance fee, three dollars monthly subscription and are expected to provide their own uniforms and various articles of equipment, although such things as cap badges, buttons, chains, belts and spurs are supplied by the unit from its funds.

PLENTY OF WORK.

A parade is held nearly every week, either mounted or dismounted. Difficulties always arise because of the limited number of horses available, either beggarly, borrowable or hireable. Some of the members are heavyweights and it is hard to mount them on China ponies. Once a month, if possible, on a Sunday, the unit (with what mounts are available) indulges in a ride—for about five hours. Revolver shoots are held every month and also a programme of lectures on map reading, pack saddlery, care of horses and other subjects of interest. Fencing lessons are given every week.

It will be recalled that a detachment of the Legion made their first appearance in public in Hongkong at the Cenotaph ceremony on Armistice Day. A day or two later, the G.O.C. directed a letter to be sent expressing his appreciation of the very smart turn-out and soldierly bearing.

LOCAL DEFENCE.

It is understood that at the present time the authorities in Hongkong are considering if and how the services of the Frontiersmen can best be utilised in the local defence scheme.

New members are welcomed on the local unit of the Legion of Frontiersmen, although more stringent admission rules are applied than is usual, for the reason that absolute honesty is essential if the unit is to get through the programme it has set itself with efficiency. Ordinarily, members can join the Legion or resign at will. In Hongkong, new members are asked to promise to put in at least a year of work with the unit.

Active members to-day include four ex-officers, and quite a number of warrant officers and N.C.O.s who have served with the Colours. Over sixty per cent. have seen active service and a hundred per cent. have had previous training either with the regular army or with auxiliary units. Some of the members are experts in some branch of military training. Mandarin, French, German, Russian, Hindustani are spoken by different members, and in the unit can be found men with a smattering of other languages.

SELF-SUPPORTING.

One of the chief features of the Legion of Frontiersmen, and it is one which largely ensures that the members are keen on the job they set themselves, is that it is entirely self-supporting. Very seldom, even at home, where the men frequently join regular cavalry units for training, does the Legion receive grants from the Crown or local authorities.

Its war record is worthy of a brief survey. Certain Frontiersmen were fighting in Flanders before the British Expeditionary Force actually landed. They were either in Belgium at the time, or went specially to Holland and joined their colleagues in Belgium in the ranks of the Belgian Landers. Princess Patricia's Canadian Cavalier Brigade was formed from a Legion cadre. Several remount depots were formed by the Legion soon after the outbreak of war.

Every year, the Legion appears to considerable strength on the Horse Guards Parade in London, and a detachment was specially invited to march in the late Field Marshal Plumer's funeral procession.

Locally, the Legion is still endeavouring to find its niche in the scheme of local defence. Its training here, as elsewhere, is directed along lines designed to make horsemen and horsemasters, rather than ceremonial cavalry. The main difficulty locally is to obtain suitable horses. The cost of upkeep, even if the horses usually available were of the right size, would be almost prohibitive.

It is scarcely necessary to add that in the local branch of the Legion, whatever the difficulties experienced, the authorities will find, should the need arise, an organised, uniformed, and well-trained body of men prepared to offer their services in whatever sphere they can be most useful.

CHINA AND FRANCE.

Nanking, Dec. 1. It is learned that negotiations for a Sino-French-Annam Commercial Treaty have reached a deadlock as a result of the imposition by Nanking of an import duty on rice, and the enforcement by Canton of the rice surtax. The French Minister to China, M. Willden, who is strongly opposed to these measures, has returned to Nanking.—Reuter.

REDS ATTACK POLICE STATION

DARING RAID NEAR SWATOW

CHIEF OFFICER KILLED

(Our Own Correspondent).

Swatow, Dec. 1.

Tonghang, fifty miles up-river from Swatow, is very unsettled. A week ago a band of alleged Communists made a night raid on a police station there, shot the officer in charge and two policemen, set free the prisoners and made off into the darkness unhindered.

The full story as now related is as follows: Recently a high official among the Kiangsi Communists managed to avoid detection and make his way with a big wad of perfectly good bank-notes to Chaoyang. When the authorities there got wind of his presence he vanished, and presumably made straight for Kiyang, for a few days later the authorities there in turn got on his track. Again he disappeared, but by now the government officials were well on the watch, and soon after his arrival in Tonghang he was spotted and followed. He was then, before they had decided if he was time to arrest him, again he vanished, to the considerable chagrin of the officials. But they lost no time in arresting those who had been visited, and found in their possession considerable numbers of the bank-notes.

SMASHED WAY IN.

The arrested men were imprisoned in the police station, to think over their conduct there; but two nights after there came this raid, the Communists boldly smashing their way in and shooting those who resisted. The officer in charge was locally unpopular and the raiders made sure that he was shot dead—the other two policemen suffered by the way. As they released and took away the prisoners, the raiders are said to have remarked, "We don't mind the money going, but it won't do to let our men get caught."

Since then it has been discovered that the raiders came from a notorious Communist area among the hills known as the Eight Villages. Before the attack they had secreted themselves in a temple only a mile out from Tonghang, and when this became known the soldiers immediately marched out and burned it to the ground, declaring that for some time past the priests there had been a suspicious lot.

SIGNIFICANT MOVE.

That is all that the military have done, but the Communists have been more active and at the present time there is a perfect spate of Communist leaflets being distributed not in Tonghang itself but all around it and especially in the district south of it. These leaflets denounce the

ROUGH WEATHER FOR LITVINOFF

CONTE DE SAVOIA DELAYED

MUSSOLINI'S PLANS

Rome, Dec. 1.

The Conte de Savoia, which is bringing M. Litvinoff, the Soviet diplomat, to Italy has been experiencing an exceedingly rough passage and her arrival will be delayed for some hours.

M. Litvinoff is not now expected to reach Rome until late tomorrow (Saturday). It is learned that the Soviet Assistant Foreign Commissioner will be received by the King on Monday and that he will later give an official dinner to Signor Mussolini at the Russian Embassy. A reception will also be given at the Turkish Embassy, a fact which is not without its significance in view of Turkey's recent treaties with the Balkan States and the rumours of the possible formation of an Eastern European bloc including Russia and Turkey.

MUSSOLINI'S AIM?

It is believed that apart from the courtesy side of M. Litvinoff's visit, Signor Mussolini had two main objectives in extending his invitation to M. Litvinoff.

It is thought that he will remind the Russian envoy that Italy was the first European Power to recognise the Soviet Republic and that relations between them have proceeded more smoothly than between the Soviet and any other Powers, and that for that reason, Italy should be specially considered in the appointment of the Soviet's commercial favours.

DISARMAMENT.

It is almost certain, too, that Signor Mussolini will seek to draw Russia into the disarmament talks. Opportunity will also be taken, it is understood, for an exchange of ratifications of the Russo-Italian non-aggression treaty.

NEW AIR GIANT.

FOR IMPERIAL AIRWAYS TRAVEL FLEET

London, Dec. 1.

The first of two new air liners which Messrs. Short are building at Rochester for Imperial Airways will be ready next month.

It will have seat for 39 passengers, four Bristol Jupiter engines, a loaded weight of 14 tons and a speed of 180 miles an hour. It will be exceptionally quiet and free from vibration.—British Wireless.

Injustices of the present regime and call men to support the Communist cause and end it.

What relation this new Communist activity has with the recent developments in Fukien and Kiangsi can only be a matter, at present, of speculation—but, the co-incidence of time is probably significant.

TROOP MOVEMENT EXPECTED.

Tonghang two days ago suddenly received orders from Canton to have in readiness four hundred bushels of rice. This taken to mean that provision must be ready for a force of 5,000 soldiers. Whence these are to come and whether they are to go is not known—nor as yet have they turned up.

WHEN THE PIER ROCKS.A STORY OF P.W.D. ENDEAVOUR

BY C.V.-L. FOR THE TELEGRAPH.

IT WAS QUITE AN EXPERIENCE, the other day to be on the new Vehicular Pier at Connaught Road Central at a moment when one of the new boats was nosing its way into the V-shaped basin. The coxswain was one who knew his job. He judged the distance to an inch, expertly bringing the unloading end into contact, and thereafter the process of clamping down, of disembarking and unloading followed as a matter of course.

No actual impact took place between pier and vessel, and so the consequences feared for the pier in the condition it is reputed to be already in, were not then demonstrated. Still, the signs of a rapid deterioration were apparent almost everywhere. In one part the pier had subsided, and in another the waiting area railings had staggered out of alignment, the whole producing an impression of the force of a subterranean upheaval.

Recently formed cracks were exposed behind the fenders, some of which in their turn appeared to have been knocked off the perpendicular, and fissures beginning to show in the superstructure suggested that this deterioration was extending to the summit.

Plainly something was radically wrong with the pier for all this to have occurred within the brief space of six months of its existence, more than maintenance or incidental repairs, reaching down to constructional stability, in short to the fundamental principles of pier design and construction.

SITUATION OF GRAVE CONCERN.

The situation might well have occasioned grave concern. Here is a mass, essentially brittle for all its bulk, being subjected to a constant buffeting by man and nature. The coxswain does not require a request to be "careful"; he may be relied upon to be as cautious as we have seen him that day, but conceivably there will always be occasions, as there have been in the past, when he cannot help giving it a forcible bump or two. Then the pier rocks alarmingly, and nervous passengers begin seriously to doubt the solidity of the mass as a whole.

This is particularly true of the hour of high tide and swirling currents, when the "orbit of excitation" becomes most marked, and the dreadful thought is engendered that the piles are sagging, that instability is reaching down to the very foundations.

This "weakness about the legs" is evident to the man who, using the pier, is not disposed, for a sufficient reason of his own, to listen to the theories of pier construction, much less to appreciate its attendant difficulties, save where that appreciation in the last can be extended to efficacy of the work when it has been put into use. It is then to be feared that having paid for it out of his own pocket, his outlook is circumscribed by this one demand for efficiency combined with safety.

Falling to be satisfied by the one or the other, he feels he has not been well served, and starts to become inquisitive.

THE MAGIC OF FIGURES.

Figures will always have a fatal attraction in these cases, and so it is that we imagine hearing a sort of triumph, as, having delved into Estimates of Public Works Extraordinary, he comes out with the information that up to date a total of well over a million and a half dollars has been expended at least on paper, on the pier.

That is as well as it may be, he not cavilling at a position returning quid pro quo. But after having further exceeded by nearly two lakhs the original estimate, it is indicated that the expenditure does not really halt there. Further allotments are being called for, and these for the purpose of an extensive overhauling of the structure.

In this, he had his first intimation from an official quarter that all was not as well as might have been expected, the additional large votes bringing the already huge outlay to the best part of two millions, being plainly a tacit admission that much more will have to be done before it can be as well as expected.

It is not left to him to understand what the character or form the further work will take, but the evidence has already been placed before him that it will be fundamental, and as such, presupposes an inexperienced direction and, very possibly, also inexperienced design from the beginning.

For these structural defects had become apparent early on, and there had set in a period of alternate tinkering and bolstering. As is the case where the faults reach down to the roots: to the very fundamentals of location, layout, and design, it has no more than carried over temporary difficulties while leaving the actual solution of the problem to be still probed by

WIFE'S SUMMONS

UNIVERSITY GRADUATE DENIES CHARGE

"They complained and conspired to have been picturing me as a brute but let me tell my whole story," said Dr. Lui Huan-pan, graduate of the Hongkong University, to Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon, when he appeared on the complaint of his wife who alleges that he was guilty of persistent cruelty to her between August 22 and October 5, 1933, and that on October 5 he did cause her, by such cruelty, to leave him. Dr. Lui was also accused of wilfully neglecting to provide reasonable maintenance for his wife, and an amended charge was after added alleging that defendant had been guilty of desertion since May 24, 1933.

Mr. Hin-shing Lo, instructed by Mr. Peter Sin, appeared for Mrs. Lui, the plaintiff.

Mr. Lo, in giving an outline of the case, said that complainant had done her utmost to forgive and forget but defendant had made it impossible for her to live with him. This couple were engaged on March 15, 1920 and married on January 27, 1924. Both the engagement and marriage were arranged by Mrs. Lui's parents and a go-between. The marriage, which took place on Cheung Chau Island, was carried out in strict accordance with old time Chinese wedding ceremonies. By this marriage, there were two children, a boy of seven years and a girl of six.

Mr. Lo said: "There is no doubt we can establish a prima facie case of the marriage."

After the marriage, the couple lived quite happily on the island, but at the end of six months, defendant suggested that they might move to Yau-mat, because he was practising at a hospital in that district. At first his wife did not consent as she had heard rumours of her husband living with another woman. After a consultation with her father, they interviewed the defendant who denied these rumours and signed a paper saying complainant was his legal wife.

Move To Yau-mat.

They then moved to Pitt Street and between January 1924 and May 24, 1933, complainant lived by herself at home, neglected by the defendant. After the birth of their first child, between the two became estranged, defendant taking no interest in the family. Finally, on May 24, 1933, defendant asked his wife to return to him at 500, Nathan Road where he had an office. This she did, but between June and October, 1933, he assaulted her three times in the presence of the other woman who lived next door.

On October 5, as the result of a vicious assault, complainant went to the S.C.A. Defendant informed them that she was not his wife but a concubine. Complainant then went to stay with relatives.

English Law.

Here followed along discussion between Mr. Wynne-Jones and Mr. Lo regarding the question of desertion as understood in English law and Chinese custom.

Mr. Wynne-Jones then said to Dr. Lui: "I know nothing of this case and have not yet heard any evidence. I do not know whether you have taken legal advice or not. It is possible, however, that you might like to reconsider this case."

Dr. Lui said he was not taking any legal advice as he could not afford to do so. He said: "I came here to tell you the truth about my wretched life. I will tell you the story from the beginning to the end. Complainant is not my wife."

Evidence was then given by Mrs. Lui to the effect that she had been married to Cheung Chau Island on January 27, 1924, the ceremony being carried out in the old Chinese custom. She also gave evidence of receiving her husband of having another woman and of his stealing a parcel belonging to her. After her husband's behaviour towards her, about this time too, he assaulted her. Since the birth of his daughter, defendant had never lived with his wife. He gave her a small allowance which varied between $30 and $40 which was no sufficient and, as a result, she had to pawn her jewellery (part of her dowry) which was worth thousands of dollars.

When she went back to defendant in Nathan Road, she helped him with his work; answered the telephone calls. She was not happy living there, as her husband frequently assaulted her, striking her on the face so often that it became bruised and swollen.

At this point Mr. Wynne-Jones adjourned the hearing for six days as Dr. Lui agreed to settle the matter. Mr. Wynne-Jones suggested that Dr. Lui visit either Mr. Hin-shing Lo or Mr. Peter Sin before the next hearing.

FOOTBALL

SUBMARINES WIN THE BEAR CUP

PETTY OFFICERS' MATCH

By three goals to one, the petty officers of the Submarines yesterday defeated the P.O.s of H.M.S. Eagle for the Bear Cup.

The match, played on the Dockyard ground, was full of incident and some surprisingly good play. It is hoped, as a result, to form a football league between Petty Officer teams of the various ships of the China Fleet.

The Submarines were assisted in recording a success when Bradshaw put through his own goal. Fallon and Cornall added the other two, and Foster moved cleverly for the Eagle.

Scorers:—O'Hara, Mist and Pickens; Haden, Hawkins, and Robert Woodling, Phillips, Hurbeta, Cornall and Fallon. Goalkeepers:—Bibben and Clark; Palmer, McLagan and Bradshaw; Munings, Bond, Durran, Foster and Warham.

TARANTULA BEAT KEPPEL

Fearless Plays For Losers

The Tarantula played the Keppel in a friendly football at Caroline Hill yesterday afternoon, the Tarantula winning by three goals to one.

The standard of play, despite the fact that the Keppel did not field their first eleven, was creditable, neither being exceedingly dangerous

RAINBOW AND BRUCE

Play Drawn Match

The Rainbow drew with the Bruce in a friendly game of football on the Dockyard Ground yesterday afternoon.

The Rainbow were certainly superior but were denied the points of victory. The Bruce's forwards took full advantage of the few openings offered.

The Rainbow's centre forward, Lt. Miers was outstanding in his attacking, while the work of Capt. Morris continually placed the Bruce's goal in jeopardy.

The goal scorers for the Rainbow were Captain Morris, in the first half, and Lt. Pain in the second half. For the Bruce, Steer found the net for them in first half, and Stapleton in the second.

Scorers:—Hokwell, Thomson, West, Masters, Bright, Tucker; Morris; Capt. Morris, Lt. Miers, Lt. Pain, Tarrett.

Goalkeepers:—Berry, Birch; Bird, Williams, Tubby, Stapleton, Steer, Farrington, Pearson, Williamson.

ACTING IN CHURCHES

MUST NOT BE TOO SENTIMENTAL

The Bishop of Winchester, Dr. Cyril Forster Garbett, has decided to institute a censorship for plays produced in the churches in his diocese.

Writing in the Winchester Diocesan Chronicle, he says he proposes to follow the procedure he adopted in his old diocese (South-west)—to request that no plays shall be performed in church unless they have been submitted to him. He will then forward the plays to a small committee, which he is going to appoint, and he will be guided by the advice this committee gives him.

High Standard Demanded
The Bishop says he has no wish to discourage the custom of having religious or mystery plays and tableaux in church, especially at Christmas and Holy Week.

"The reverent performance of a suitable play in church," he writes, "may leave a deep impression on those who have witnessed it." But it is essential, he adds, that these plays should be of a high standard of merit. A few of the plays written for use in church which he had read were good, but many were bad and farred on educated persons; others were feeble and sentimental, and gave in colloquial or stilted language imaginary dialogues between the Blessed Virgin and the Apostles. Plays such as these, written with the best intentions in the world, in the Bishop's opinion make neither for instruction nor devotion.

The Bishop, in conclusion, states that as a rule the words of the plays should be taken from the Scriptures, though exception may be made when the committee is of opinion that the play is of such devotional value that it is worthy of performance in church.

ATLANTIC FLYING BOAT DAMAGED

Aircraftman Shaw to the Rescue

One of the two German flying boats which are to make experimental flights across the South Atlantic met with a mishap on arrival at Woolston airport, Southampton.

After alighting the machine was carried by a sudden gust of wind into one of the two floating bridges that ferry between Woolston and Southampton.

The wing and the hull of the machine were damaged. Launches dashed to its assistance, the first man to reach it being Aircraftman Shaw (Lawrence of Arabia), who had circled the planes in a launch as they taxied up the river.

The aim of the experimental flight is to fly between Bathurst, British Gambia, and Natal, Brazil, as a link in an all-air route between Berlin and Rio de Janeiro, a distance of about 8,000 miles.

The central feature of the scheme is the use of a landing place in the middle of the South Atlantic. The North German Lloyd liner, Westfalen, is to be used as this floating aerodrome, and she is already in position.

For the South Atlantic hop one flying boat will fly from Bathurst to the Westfalen and another will be catapulted from the ship to make the remainder of the flight to Brazil. The ocean flight will be over approximately 1,800 miles.

If the experiment succeeds it is hoped to establish a weekly air service between Central Europe and South America.

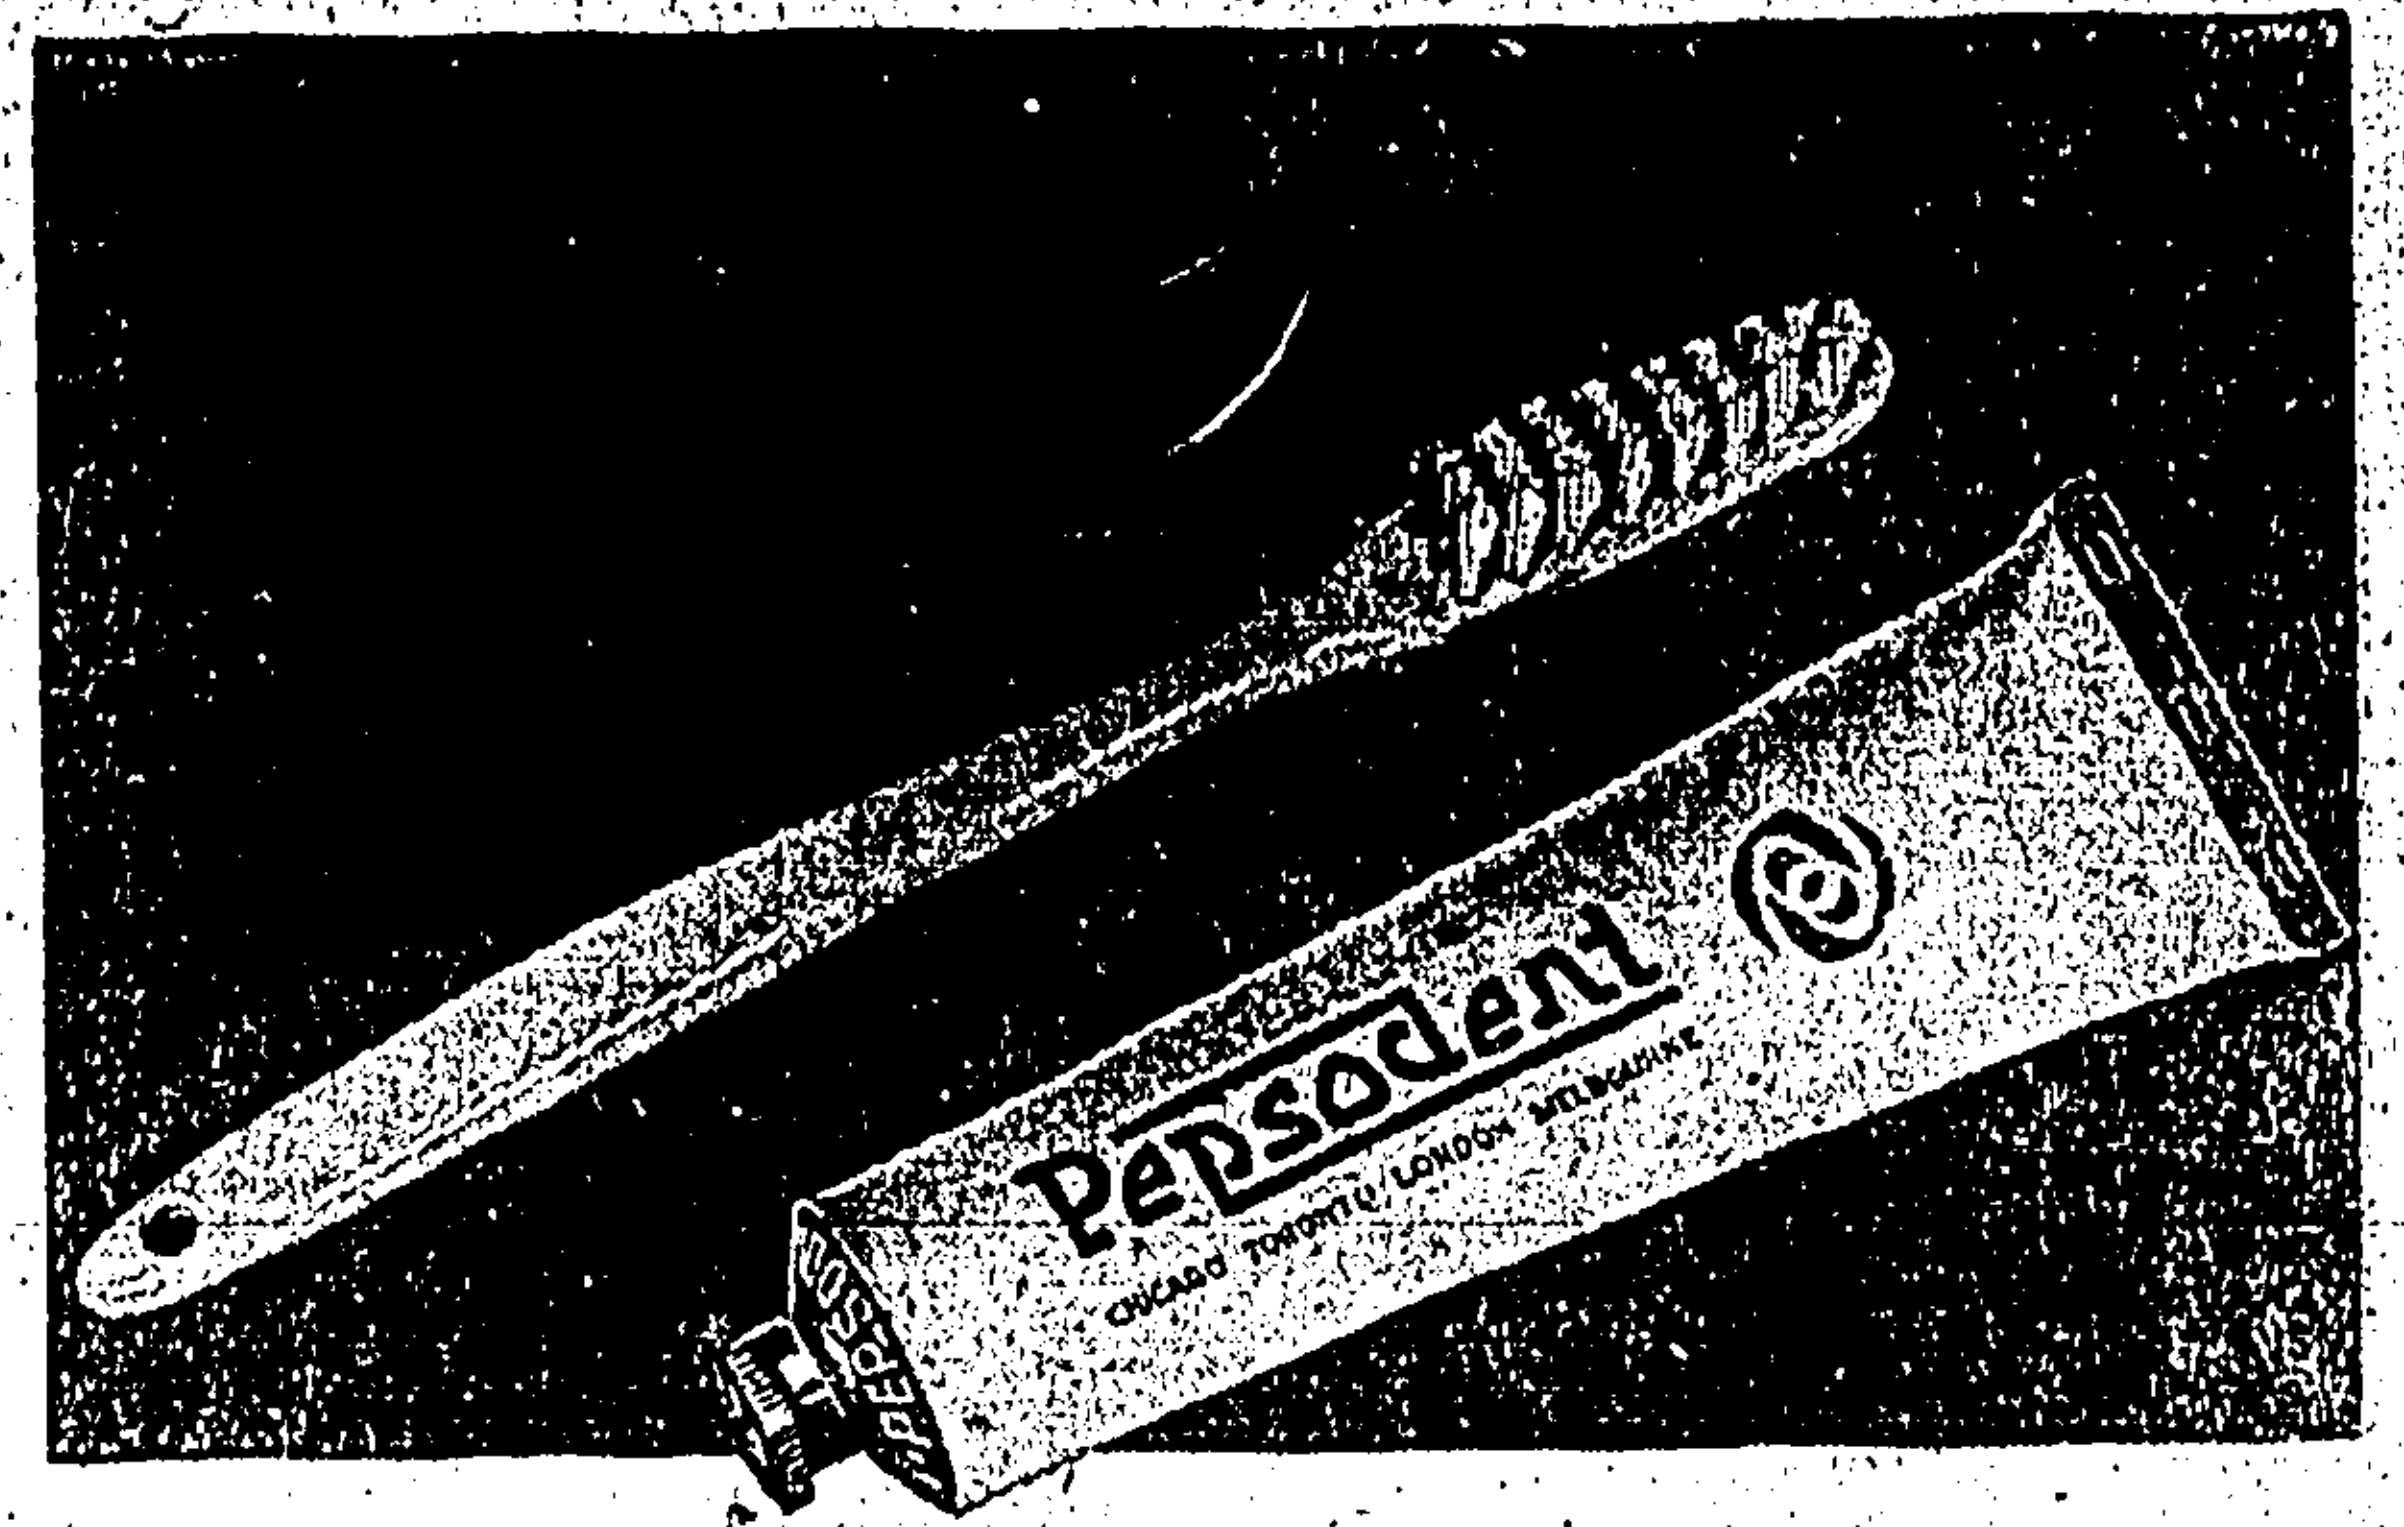

"FARES, PLEASE"

"WHAT'S YOUR INCOME?"

Riga. Railway, omnibus and tramcar fares throughout the U.S.S.R. are to be revised on a "class basis," says a report from Moscow.

Each traveller is to pay according to his earnings. When he applies for his ticket he will have to produce a "labour card" showing his income.

Citizens earning more than £10 (at par) a month will be charged one shilling for a tram ride anywhere in Moscow. Those incomes under £10 will pay only one-fifth of the present fare.—Reuter.

Pepsodent announces a notable new discovery

—an entirely new cleansing and polishing material that is twice as soft as polishing materials commonly used in tooth pastes. Gives teeth a higher polish, brighter lustre—FILM stains disappear completely.

THE Pepsodent Laboratories announce a revolutionary discovery—a new cleansing and polishing material for tooth paste. For six months Pepsodent Tooth Paste has contained this remarkable new material. It possesses three exclusive virtues:

1. It stands unequalled in removing dull, destructive FILM.
2. Its texture is invisibly fine. Thus, it imparts a higher polish to enamel—a brilliant glaze or lustre.
3. It is safe because it is soft—yes, twice as soft—as polishing materials in common use.

Yet in taste and appearance Pepsodent is still the Pepsodent you have always known. In results and safety it is new—brand new.

Pepsodent—special FILM-removing tooth paste

Removing FILM is, and always will be, Pepsodent's chief duty. Today's Pepsodent performs that duty better than ever before. Its new cleansing and polishing material brings a change in teeth' appearance within a few days' time.

Get a tube of Pepsodent today. See how quickly and safely it rids your teeth of decay-producing film—how it polishes them to sparkling brilliance.

HOW TO PLAY
GOOD BILLIARDS

MUST START IN PROPER MANNER

EQUIPMENT, STANCE AND CUE HOLD OF PRIME IMPORTANCE

(By Willie Smith, British Champion)

EXCLUSIVE TO "TELEGRAPH"

One of the first steps towards the proficient billiards player is to make the mind up that the game must be played in a really serious manner if any degree of proficiency is to be attained. The game is so highly skilled—indeed, it is the most highly skilled game in the world. This is proved by the fact that although more people play billiards than play any other of our national sports the professionals of any quality can be numbered only at about half a dozen. And among the huge numbers of those who play as amateurs the total who can be termed really good amateurs are only about half a dozen also. These figures are evidence of the difficulties the beginner has to face.

There is no need, however, to be afraid of these difficulties. Start in a proper manner to learn the game. Even if you have been playing some considerable time, there are means of improving your play. This series of articles is for the purpose of helping you along.

THE CHIEF FAULTS.

Everyone who plays any game at all likes to be good at it. Very few play for the purpose of passing the time away. Now the chief fault I find among the mass of amateurs whom I watch are bad stance, badly held cues and in the main wrong conceptions as to how to swing the cue and deliver the stroke. Most amateurs seem to have taken to the game through having had a cue put into their hands by a pal who showed them hurriedly, how to hold it, how to make a bridge, and how to strike at the ball. If one begins a game wrongly there can be little hope of attaining proficiency at it. Hence the dearth of good amateurs in the country.

First in the equipment of a player is the correct stance, to enable the body to be perfectly balanced and as firm as a rock when aiming and delivering the stroke. Even the slightest movement of the body will cause a stroke to be missed. This is most apparent in the powerful strokes.

And these remarks will, I hope, explain why you do not always aim right when playing, say, a powerful forcing stroke—the object ball being struck either nearly full-ball, or thinly, instead of half-ball as intended.

The next thing is the bridge for the cue. This really is a simple matter and can be easily mastered. The main thing is that the cue should remain nicely balanced between the thumb and the first finger. Be careful not to let the thumb move or hang loosely in a manner that could be termed slovenly because the cue will then be liable to dip slightly, and correct and straight cueing will not be possible. Straight cueing and absolute steadiness of the body are two main things in the equipment of a billiards player.

THE CUE-HOLD.

We now come to the cue-hold, which has been the cause of much controversy in the billiards world. Many players allege that the cue should be held lightly with the first finger and the thumb. That to my mind is ridiculous. How on earth anyone can be expected to play a powerful forcing stroke or a big screw shot with a light hold like this puzzles me.

I do not claim that I am right in my cue-hold and that everyone else is wrong. Far from it. But what success I have won in my profession has been won by following the methods I recommend to my readers. I hold my cue with all the fingers and the thumb. In this way it is possible to bring the wrist into play, a most essential thing.

YESTERDAY'S HOCKEYJATS WIN A GREAT
MATCH

FROM H.K.S.R.A.

One of the best games of the season resulted from the meeting between the H.K.S.R.A. and the Jat Regiment on the Marina ground yesterday. Both sides were at full strength and the final score of one goal to nil in favour of the Jats was a fair indication of the run of play.

The R.A. were rather faster than their opponents but the Jats counteracted this with some very fine stickwork. Singar Khan was outstanding in the centre-half position for the Jats, and on the form he showed yesterday there is little doubt as to his being the best pivotal man in the Colony. Jall, at inside-left, was inclined to be slow in the first half but in the closing stages gave the R.A. backs a lot of trouble. Habib also played well on the other side of Mohamed Sherif, the centre man.

In the R.A. side Ravenhill was given plenty to do at centre-half. He broke up many promising moves and gave the attack plenty of good passes. Mahtab Ali, partnered by Lieut. Hobert, saved his side on many occasions and brought off some exceptionally fine clearances. Aya Singh, who led the attack, was slow in front of goal and missed two sitters in the second half.

The Jats got their only goal about half way through the second half. Lieut. Lyons gave Habib a neat pass to the edge of the circle. As the latter was tackled he put a well-placed flick pass to Mohamed Sherif who tapped past the goal-keeper.

C.B.A. Beat Club "A".
The Hong Kong Club "A" team was opposed to the C.B.A. in a friendly game at King's Park yesterday and lost by two goals to nil. Both sides started with seven men only and it was decided to use the inside line as touch. When late-comers arrived the outside line was used. W. Reed played at centre-half for the Club and wore home colours. The Club also had the help of Deakes of the Mule Corps.

S. MacNider and T. Whitley scored for the G.B.A.

The friendly cricket match arranged between the Central British Association and the China Light & Power Recreation Club for tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon, has been cancelled.

King's Challenge For The Whip

The King has challenged for the Whip with Fox-Earth and Lord Astor with Creme Brulee.

The Whip is run for on the Thursday of every Newmarket First Spring Meeting, but rarely provides a race. The present holder is Lord Harewood, whose Crug Park defeated Huron in a challenge for the trophy this spring—the first since 1918.

Lord Harewood must accept the challenges or resign the Whip by next Thursday.

One of the oldest racing trophies in existence, the Whip was first raced for in 1764. It was then an actual racing whip used by King Charles II., but this was lost, and the existing trophy is supposed to have been made from hairs of the tail of the great horse, Eclipse.

MEN'S WEAR SPECIALISTS

HONG KONG

Dear Sir,

It is the universal opinion that the buying public to-day is again desirous of obtaining quality in its purchases rather than merely low priced articles, and, though the initial outlay be more, it is realized that in the long run Quality pays.

We, like most people here, know that the Colony is passing through a serious trade depression, and so to help those who naturally prefer the better article, we have decided to offer the whole of our stock during the month of December at a special discount of 25%.

This offer is of mutual benefit—you get a large variety of new high quality goods at greatly reduced prices—we are able to bring our heavy stock, bought on the indications of a trade revival, down to normal.

Isn't this worth your consideration?

Yours faithfully

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

"Night of the Garter", which is coming to the Central Theatre on Sunday, will introduce to filmgoers a new character named Bodger, a butler; and Bodger, as interpreted by Sydney Howard, seems destined to take his place among the select group of fictional butlers that includes Jeeves, Jenks and the admirable Crickton. It would be impossible to describe in a few words the hilarious adventures that befall Bodger during the eventful night in which the action of the story takes place, a night when all the members of the cast arrive at a country house in search of a jewelled garter; a night when doors slam alarmingly in the darkness, as jealous wives chase guilty husbands; a night which for Bodger is simply one attack of consternation after another. And how that action can register consternation. Sydney Howard, starred for seven months at the Strand Theatre, London, in the stage play of the same title, and a number of the principal players supporting him at the Strand have been recruited for the film. These include Connie Ediss, Harold French, Jack Melford and Austin Melford. But the feature of the supporting cast which holds most interest is the fact that it marks a further development of B.D.'s production policy—the inclusion in one picture of three of their main players: Sydney Howard; Winifred Shotter, who has a straight characterisation; and Elsie Randolph, who has a strong comedy role and a new style evening wrap which consists exclusively in a tattered horse blanket.

"The Stranger's Return."

"With Lionel Barrymore and Miriam Hopkins heading an impressive cast, "The Stranger's Return" will come as next change to the Queen's. Adapted from the new novel of rural life by Phil Stong, author of "State Fair," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture achieves a greatness in performance and directorial distinction as well as sheer pictorial beauty. King Vidor directed the film and adds another superb effort to his long list of screen accomplishments. Franchot Tone, hailed as the screen's newest romantic hero, fits easily into the role of the farm lover and paired with Miss Hopkins, leaves nothing to be desired by way of interest in this motivating theme. Barrymore in the 85-year-old patriarch of the farm who refuses to do until he sees his farm destined for sympathetic hands. Most of the picture was filmed on a farm location that brings the barnyard right to the childhood memories of all of us. Vidor, in his superb camera treatment, has captured the earthy charm of the bucolic setting, against which the tense drama of the story unfolds. It is easily among the finest pictures of the year, and the splendid performances of the stars and cast will long live in the memories of theatregoers. Included in the cast are Stuart Erwin, Irene Hervey, Deulah Bondi, Grant Mitchell, Tad Alexander and Aileen Carlyle.

"Murders at the Zoo"

Death strikes mysteriously... suddenly... horribly to all those who dare woo favours from the warm, red lips of a beautiful woman in Paramount's thrilling "Murders in the Zoo" which opened yesterday at the Queen's Theatre. The picture features Charlie Ruggles, Lionel Atwill, Kathleen Burke, (the Panther Woman), Randolph Scott, John Lodge and Gail Patrick. The Green Mamba, scourge of the jungle, is quite the most insidious killer you've ever seen, and this deadly scourge of the jungle now strikes terror into the heart of a big city, aided and abetted by such deadly creatures as the voracious crocodiles and the bone-crushing python. Edward Sutherland, director of "The Kid From Spain," has produced a well-paced picture, full of thrills and action from startling beginning to absorbing finish. Charlie Ruggles provides a grand comedy performance.

"Pilgrimage"

A technical innovation in the manner of scoring films was introduced during the making of Fox's "Pilgrimage," recently, when Louis De Francesco, music director of the studio, began his "unit recording" plan. Instead of scoring music after the picture is completed, as is the general practice with producing organizations, the new plan calls for the music for the background and themes to be composed and scored step by step with the production. This system of "Pilgrimage," co-featuring Henrietta Crossman, Heather Angel, Marjorie Nixon and Norman Foster, chopped a week from the production schedule.

RETURN OF SAAR

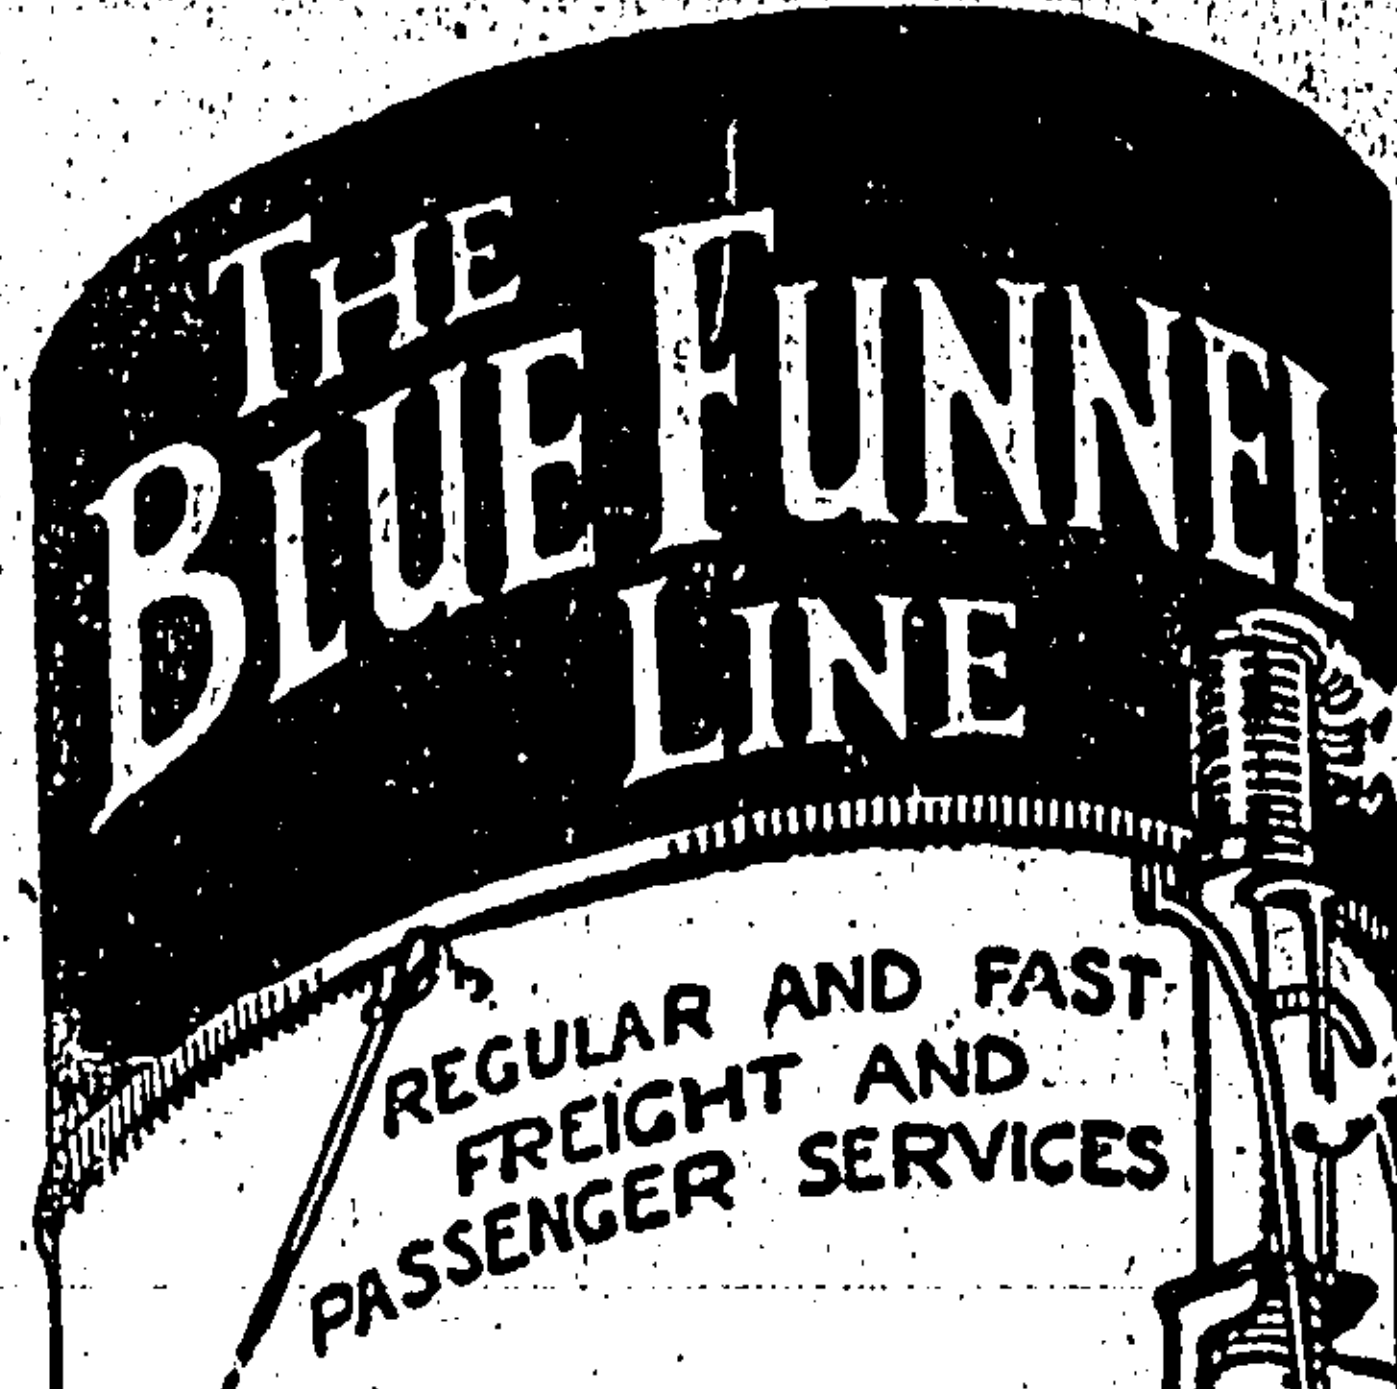

IMPOSSIBLE BEFORE 1935
PLEBISCITE

Paris, Dec. 1.

Countering Hitler's broad suggestions for the unconditional return of the Saar to Germany, the Chamber of Deputies Foreign Affairs Committee adopted a resolution that no return should be considered before the plebiscite in 1935.

An official communique says that the object of the resolution is to draw the Government's attention to the necessity for approaching the League of Nations in order to assure the non-violation of treaty rights and complete freedom at the plebiscite.

Under the treaty, voters in the plebiscite must have been residents in the Saar in 1919, and over 20 years of age. Germans who immigrated subsequently will be barred from registering an opinion.—Reuter.

MR. A. E. WOOD AS S.C.A.

SUCCEEDS MR. E. R. HALLIFAX

It is officially notified that His Excellency the Governor, under instructions received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, has appointed Mr. A. E.
Wood to be Secretary for Chinese
Affairs in place of Mr. E. R.
Hallifax, C.M.G., C.B.E., retired.

Mr. Wood is one of the best-known and most able Cadet officers in the service of the Government, and has won high praise for his work in the S.C.A., his relations with the Chinese having always been most cordial.

Arriving in the Colony nearly 26 years ago, Mr. Wood has spent the most of his time in the S.C.A.,
although he has also served in the New Territories and has been Director of Education. He was also Secretary to the Government Trade Loan. He is a highly qualified linguist, speaking Cantonese, Hakka, Pekinese and Japanese.

During the recent Budget debate, it was intimated that Mr.
Wood would be retiring next year, a circumstance which caused the Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall to suggest that efforts be made to retain his services. The official reply, however, was to the effect that there was little hope of such efforts being successful.

It is fitting that, after his prolonged service in the S.C.A., Mr.
Wood should be appointed as his head, and his many friends will join in congratulating him on his appointment.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S FUTURE

LOCAL POLITICAL PRESSURE

CHANGE OF GOVERNMENT

London, Dec. 1.

Newspaper comment on the impending changes in Newfoundland emphasises that the initiative throughout comes from the Dominion.

Both Houses of the Newfoundland Parliament have now passed resolutions in favour of a temporary suspension of the Dominion Constitution. The next step will be the presentation to the King of a humble address asking for suspension of the present Letters Patent for the administration of Newfoundland by a Commission of Government, on the lines recommended by the recent Royal Commission, which, it is recalled, was appointed by and comprised of nominees of the Governments of Britain, Canada and Newfoundland.

When the necessary legislation to give effect to this request is passed by the British Parliament,
six members of the Commission will be appointed by the British Government, three of them being drawn from Newfoundland.

CURIOUS SHANGHAI RUMOUR

Shanghai, Dec. 2.

While attention is focussed on the Fukien developments, another curious rumour is going round to the effect that certain civil leaders in the South are planning a second secessionist movement.

The rumour alleges that as the leaders referred to are not in sympathy with the Fukien rebels, whose denunciation of the Kuomintang principles is regarded as extravagant they are, at the same time, antagonistic to the Nanking regime. Therefore they propose to set up another "central subject to local political pressure, and it will be the duty of the Commission of Government to work out and carry through a programme of reforms, not merely to meet the present financial emergency, but to secure the economic development of the island and improve the social conditions of its in-
